CHAIRMAN OF NAVAL AFFAIRS PROPOSES A NEW CONFERENCE

Baldwin Asked To Call Session In Canada Next Year

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A new limitation of armament conference between the United States and Great Britain to apply to all ships of war not covered by the Washington treaty was recommended today by Chairman Britten of the house naval affairs committee.

He announced that he has cabled Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of England asking that such a conference be held in Canada after March 4, 1929.

"I am impelled to suggest a joint meeting of the committee of naval affairs of the U. S. house of representatives and a select committee of members of parliament for friendly discussion and the hearing of testimony in connection with applying the principle of equality in sea power between Great Britain and the United States on all ships of war not already covered by the Washington treaty," Britten cabled.

"Meetings to take place preferably in Canada after March 4, 1929, and each committee will report with recommendations to its respective government just as may now be done annually by the various groups of the interparliamentary union."

Britten said his proposal was "unusual but entirely within my congressional authority."

He suggested that conferees be non-military men.

"America's naval policy has never been competitive but on the contrary has been defensive and rarely commensurate with the world position of the United States," Britten said in a statement.

"We have actually been backward in promoting true national defense. The American people favor general armament reductions but only to a limit of national safety.

"England and America should lead the way now toward naval limitation and a peaceful understanding on the sea. We must never be regarded as military competitors."

WOMAN KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES CAB

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Mrs. Esther Sawtelle, 35, of Cleveland, was killed here late yesterday when the taxicab in which she was riding was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train. She was returning from Starling Loving Hospital where she had visited her husband, Lee D. Sawtelle, 45, when the crash occurred.

Sawtelle was injured in an automobile accident Monday. Charles Bishop, driver of the cab, was not seriously injured. Mrs. Sawtelle was staying with friends here. O. D. Keeton, crossing watchman, charged Bishop failed to heed a warning sign posted as the train approached. He said the cabman drove around other cars waiting for the train and sped onto the tracks.

EX-MAYOR ACCUSED

NEWARK, O., Nov. 28.—W. H. N. Stevens, former mayor here, faced a statutory charge today, filed by Miss Luella Deming who was appointed a member of the city health board during Stevens' administration. She never took office however, because the city council refused to confirm her appointment which later was withdrawn.

Community Chest Still Short Of Quota

Believe $9,000 Will Be Collected; Work Continues

Despite last-minute efforts that netted $800 Tuesday, the Xenia Community Chest fund campaign was still about $1,000 short of its goal when reports were tabulated at campaign headquarters Wednesday morning.

T. H. Xell, chairman of the drive, declared Wednesday that $9,000 is in sight in cash and pledges.

Many outstanding reports and prospects, however, cause officials and workers to believe that the deficit will be reduced materially as subscriptions drift in during the next few days.

A special follow-up campaign will be made, it has been decided, and workers will continue their efforts for several days before making a clean-up report.

The status of the campaign is:

Goal sought	$10,000
Amount subscribed	$ 9,000
Deficit	$ 1,000

"This year we all have faced an unusual situation," Chairman Zell declared. "The campaign is in process of education in brotherhood and humanity. The situation is not purely a local one for in Cleveland and Detroit the canvasses were also short of their goal."

With the chest drive so near its goal, Chairman Zell is confident the amount still needed will be forthcoming. He points out that the card index system at headquarters discloses that at least 500 homes have not yet been solicited. This is attributed to the fact the chest organization had such a short space of time in which to make plans for a systematic campaign.

"Citizens of the community want to give—there is no doubt about that," Mr. Zell emphasized. "One thing that makes us feel the drive will end successfully is that a number of people are taking an increased interest in the chest plan. This is indicated by the fact they have increased their subscriptions from their original pledges to the fund.

Forty Xenia business men were making an exhaustive canvass Wednesday of Xenians that have not been interviewed. This whirlwind, eleventh-hour campaign is expected to put the drive over its quota.

A Thanksgiving Thought!

Trudging hand in hand, two forlorn little figures were wending their way to school.

Bright eyes set in pinched and pale faces. Ragged and ill-fitting clothing draped their slight forms. The chill early morning air set teeth a-chatter.

Obviously they were brothers, one a school lad, the other a little tad not yet of school age. With solicitous care the big brother looked to the safety of the little fellow at every step.

Occasionally he spurred the lagging footsteps of the youngster with cheering words. "Gee, bud, don't drag back and make me late, 'er we won't get nothin.' They don't like for you to be late. I'm goin' to get you somethin' good when we get to school."

School reached, the tiny pair presented themselves before the teacher. "Why did you bring your little brother, Jimmy?" she asked. "He's not old enough to start to school."

You, reader, would never guess the boy's answer. Here it is in truth, just as he gave it, for this thing actually occurred in our own Xenia schools, where the P.-T. A. provides care and nourishment for under-privileged children of school age.

Embarrassed, Jimmy stammered: "Y-you see, teacher, I want him to get a dinner like you give us kids. He's hungry and I told him I'd bring him."

"But the lunch the P.-T. A. furnishes is just for school children who are under-nourished," said the teacher. "Your little brother isn't old enough to start to school."

Tears dimmed Jimmy's eyes—then his face brightened. "That's all right teacher," he said. "Just give him my dinner and I won't need any. Y'see you fed me yesterday but he didn't have nothin' to eat yesterday or this morning and Johnny, he ain't very strong, so give him mine today, won't you please, teacher?"

Of course, the school fed the boy—a hungry child had to be fed.

Thursday many Xenians will sit down to tables filled with all the good things that make up a Thanksgiving dinner. Turkey or chicken, dressing and cranberry sauce. But somehow, it sort of takes much of the enjoyment out of that meal to know that in Xenia there will be families in absolute want for food—children not properly nourished—deprived through poverty from the very necessities of life.

Some, perhaps, may then realize that giving is not an obligation, but a privilege and look more generously toward the Community Chest.

It's tough not to have something good to eat on Thanksgiving. There are many who won't. The Chest is not yet full. Call Chest 283 now and tell them you want to give—or want to give more.

Did You Know? Ohio To Celebrate Thanksgiving

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—There is no news value in the announcement that Ohio will observe Thanksgiving tomorrow, except perhaps in far-off Polynesia.

There is, however, a thought or two in the manner in which this pretty state goes about celebrating and a certain interest in the sentimental review incident to the day of thanks.

To begin with there is an item indicating how the state breaks away from time-honored customs. A check of the wholesale places, meat markets and suchlike, reveals the startling knowledge that the turkey is losing his place as the stereotyped emblem of Thanksgiving Day.

The United Press query, "Selling many turkeys?" was answered promptly by most poultry and meat dealers.

"No. They're eating pork this year." Some said hogs, some pigs, some chops—it was the same. Pork was far ahead in popularity. It became a question of whether some orchard magnate might have spread the idea in order to popularize applesauce.

The principal item on the Thanksgiving table of most public institutions in the state where special dinners will be served and in all charitable institutions where baskets will be packed, is also pork, the survey revealed.

While the home is castle in the usual plan of tomorrow's merriment, there is an appreciable list of goings-on—for instance:

1. Special church services.
2. Football games, officially closing the gridiron season for Ohio teams.
3. No school.
4. Either no work or less work for Mr. Citizen.
4 Special performances at the theaters.
6. Especially arranged musical programs on the radios.
7. Big dinners.
8. The foreboding of a week of hash luncheons.

Students in the public schools, colleges and universities of the state, with very few exceptions, were down for dismissal this afternoon for the remainder of the week.

The colored section of Columbus came forth with an embellished announcement of a big dance and Mardi Gras, an "annual formal ball" and other carryings-on.

But there is another angle to Ohio's Thanksgiving. It is the line-up of homeless and needy who will flock to the Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, organized charities and just anywhere there's an opening, in desperate attempts to make the day mean something to them.

"No man need knock on doors or ask alms on the street here Thanksgiving Day," an official of one of the charity houses said after reviewing plans of institutions all over the state to make holiday for Ohio's unfortunates. But his list did not mention the man with beggar's clothing and the pride of blue-blood; nor the widow with children to provide for and not the slightest idea of how to go about taking advantage of organized charity.

Practically all public and private offices, stores and other business places are to be closed all day tomorrow.

Baskets will be distributed to families of Ohio Penitentiary prisoners.

Special church services will be held at the penitentiary tomorrow morning and a special dinner will be spread, Warden Thomas announced. The morsel is to be pork. County jails, city prisons and workhouses over the state will fare similarly.

While some give concentration to the significance of the day, others will use it like they use all other holidays—an excuse to celebrate, but there are two men in "death row" at Ohio Penitentiary who face, perhaps, a more difficult mental problem in the endeavor to realize something to be thankful for. They are Stanley Hoppe, Toledo clubber, and John Rucker, Cincinnati negro, who are schedued to die in the electric chair the day after Thanksgiving.

Generally, however, the state's prospect for a big holiday, is cheery.

TWO ARRESTED AS OMAHA AX SLAYER

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 28.—Omaha officers were confronted today with the problem of deciding which, if either of two men is guilty of three ax murders here.

Jake Bird, Negro suspect, again had been identified as the assailant of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stribling and is connected by some authorities with the three murders. At the same time in Spokane, Wash., Elmer Williams, 24, a former Nebraska Negro, confessed to the hatchet murders when arrested.

INJURED IN CRASH

GALLIPOLIS, O., Nov. 28.—Relatives here have received word that Jacob Vervenne was seriously injured when his automobile was wrecked in a collision with another car at Hackensack, N. Y. Vervenne is a brother-in-law of Ex Congressman Robert M. Switzer.

THIRD TYPHOON IS MENACING PHILIPPINES; DEATH TOLL HIGH

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 28.—With the death toll of two storms in the past week still undetermined, the Philippine Islands and the Island of Guam today prepared for a third typhoon which was reported approaching.

Fragmentary reports from remote sections of the islands indicated the death toll would total more than 100.

Information of death and destruction was gained from native runners. All lines of communication have been broken.

Food and medical supplies will be taken to the southern groups of islands today by four U. S. destroyers.

Governor General Henry L. Stimson and a group of army and navy communication chiefs were to meet today in an effort to formulate plans to re-establish communication.

The Island of Samar, where the wind velocity exceeded seventy miles an hour, received the brunt of Monday's storm. Ninety per cent of the houses on this island were damaged, at least 20 per cent of the crops were destroyed and roads were reported blocked.

HOOVER IS WARMLY RECEIVED; MAKES FRIENDS IN CORINTO

President-Elect Is In Costa, Rica, His Fourth Stop

PUNTA ARENAS, COSTA RICA, Nov. 28.—President-elect Herbert Hoover landed in Costa Rica today, the fourth country he has visited on his good-will tour of Central and South America.

The battleship Maryland, carrying the Hoover party, came up the Gulf of Nicoya early this morning and Mr. Hoover landed at 8:15 a. m.

The president-elect was enthusiastically greeted by a large crowd. He entrained at once for San Jose, the capital, where he will be welcomed officially.

The Maryland left Corinto, Nicaragua, at 2:15 p. m. yesterday.

Hoover captivated the hearts of the "man in the street" in Corinto, by walking through the dusty streets like an ordinary citizen, his face lit up with a boyish, friendly smile. Children and natives hailed him as he passed and shouted: "viva Hoover, Moncada, and friendship."

It was predicted that Hoover's good will mission accomplished more in this concluding gesture of his Nicaraguan call than reams of diplomatic correspondence lasting months would achieve.

Hoover expressed deep thankfulness that the national crisis, "into which my own country has been drawn has now reached a basis of solution for which I wish to congratulate the leaders of the Nicaraguan nation."

President Diaz expressed his satisfaction at meeting the president-elect of the United States in the closing days of his term of office and said:

"I salute you, Mr. Hoover who took this great step which stimulates sympathetic sentiments toward the United States on the part of all nations of the world.

"Nicaraguan people express to you our cordial disposition to cooperate in great continental harmony."

Both Moncada and Diaz in interviews expressed the wish that United States marines would supervise Nicaraguan elections four years hence, while the Nicaraguan national guard, was being built up in efficiency through proper training.

GRID EDITION

THE GAZETTE publishes today its annual football edition before the big game of the season, the contest between Central High and Springfield High at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday afternoon that will wind up the season.

This edition was accomplished with the assistance of Central High students, who gained practical experience in selling advertising by calling on Xenia merchants in co-operation with the advertisement department of THE GAZETTE.

The school receives a percentage of the advertising revenue of this issue, which will be applied to the athletic department funds and Xenia merchants co-operated generously in helping the school. All that remains to make the occasion a success is for the team to defeat Springfield Thursday.

PROPOSED BILL MAY COMBINE NAVY AND WAR DEPARTMENTS

Suggests Creation Of Department Of National Defense

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A bill to create a department of national defense supplanting the present war and navy departments will be introduced this session by Rep. W. Frank James, Republican, of Michigan, ranking member of the house military affairs committee. He told the United Press today a national defense department to control all U. S. military and naval activities would increase efficiency of the present defense strength nearly 100 per cent.

"At present, there is continual friction between the war and navy heads," James said, "but under my plan perfect coordination would be effected.

"The secretary of national defense would have supervision of the army, navy, marine corps and air service. Duplication of activities would be eliminated."

James favors reorganization of America's military system "for the good of the country." He explained that the assistant secretaries of the national defense department would automatically make up the national defense council and this strategy board would guide this destinies of American armament.

There would be four assistant secretaries of the new department. They would be in charge of the army, the navy and marine corps, the air service and the purchasing bureau.

FARM RELIEF WILL DEPEND ON HOOVER IS PRESENT BELIEF

Congress Expected To Rely On President For Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A disposition to place responsibility for the time and nature of farm relief legislation on President-Elect Hoover is growing among senators and representatives assembling here for the short session of congress.

The wide divergence of opinion among agricultural leaders on the farm relief bill subject has created a tangle which many believe Hoover himself must straighten out.

Senator McNary, Repn., Oregon, is the leader of an apparently minority group intent upon passing a bill as soon as possible. They advocate speedy enactment of a measure incorporating all important provisions of the old McNary-Haugen bill except the equalization fee.

They argue that this measure embraces the program outlined by Hoover in his campaign speeches and therefore will be satisfactory to him. Furthermore, they point out that early action will be necessary to fulfill Hoover's St. Louis promise of farm relief before the next harvest.

Senator Borah, Repn., Idaho, is the spokesman of another group desirous of having a special session of congress called by Hoover and guided by his recommendations to pass farm relief legislation.

Borah and his followers profess to believe the farm relief problem is too complicated for solution at the short session. They say it involves passage of three measures—a marketing bill, a surplus crop disposal bill and tariff revision to give agricultural products higher protection.

WAVE OF INFLUENZA CLAIMS 17 LIVES

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28—Health authorities of Los Angeles are considering adoption of strict measures to combat the wave of influenza that has taken seventeen lives this week.

Forty-two persons have died from the disease since Nov. 1, health officers estimated today. City health officers said that a check showed 2,132 persons in the city limits suffering from influenza.

Pasadent schools have been closed because of the epidemic as have schools of Monrovia, Garden Grove, La Habra, Fullerton and Placentia.

In Hollywood, more than a dozen screen celebrities are reported ill of influenza.

"Y." FOUNDER DIES

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—Funeral services for Mrs. Maria Louisa Barrett Chamberlin, 87, one of the founders of the Y. W. C. A., will be held here Friday. Mrs. Chamberlin died yesterday after an illness of three months.

She was president-secretary of the Y. W. C. A. for sixteen years after its founding.

SHOT BY HUNTER

LANCASTER, O., Nov. 28.—Morton Pairan, Lancaster, was seriously injured yesterday when he was shot accidentally by a companion while they were hunting. Twenty buckshot lodged in the youth's body.

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING ARE ALREADY DEAD"

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Wesley McCafferty, 40, of Champaign County, was back at the London Prison Farm today puzzled as to whether his ingenuity and business acumen are assets or liabilities.

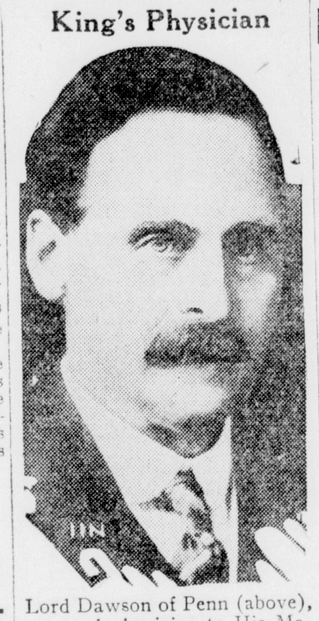

McCafferty was released from the prison on parole. He had been serving from one to three years for failure to support his wife and children. He determined they should not want again but decided he would earn his way with his brain.

Accordingly McCafferty took note of the advertisement of a soap concern which wanted lists of prospective customers. Those sending in good, long lists, were to get a bar of soap for each name. Fair enough! So McCafferty hied himself to an Urbana grave yard and laboriously copied a long list of more or less select names. He sent the list in then went to the general delivery window at the postoffice and claimed his bar of soap for each name along with all the samples the company sent the graveyard people. He went into the soap business and cleaned up considerably.

McCafferty's success along this line led him to another project which involved signatures petitioning the city for improvements. This was also a phantom list.

McCafferty was returned to the penitentiary today under regulations pertaining to "violation of parole."

BLAME HEAPED UPON VESTRIS MASTER IS PARTIALLY LIFTED

Second Officer Of Ship Blames False Messages.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The blame that has been heaped upon the head of Capt. William J. Carey, dead master of the steamship Vestris, began to lighten today as the government continued its investigation into the sinking of the Lamport and Holt liner.

Previous testimony before United States Commissioner Francis O'Neill has accused Carey of fatal delay in sending out an SOS when the vessel was sinking off the Virginia capes and of negligence in ordering passengers into lifeboats.

Yesterday Leslie Watson, second officer of the Vestris, declared Carey was deceived concerning the condition of the ship by "reassuring messages" sent up from the engine room. Watson's testimony was virtually the only one given during the course of the hearings which placed Carey in a favorable light. Members of the Vestris crew who took the stand were generally reticent about Carey's part in the disaster, but some passengers have been outspoken in their criticism of the captain.

Watson, who said he acted as messenger between Carey and the engine room, testified that the reports sent up to the master of the vessel were that the Vestris could be kept afloat.

The other important witness of the day was Harry Wheeler, marine superintendent of the Lamport and Holt line, who offered four conjectures as to why the Vestris sank. They were:

1. Rupture of shell plating.
2. Parting of seam riveting.
3. Fracture of sea connections.
4. Straining of the coal ports.

Members of the Vestris crew testified before the department of commerce hearing which is being conducted to determine whether federal inspectors were negligent in their examination of the ship. Both hearings will be continued today.

MONEY MARKET FIRM BEFORE HOLIDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Wall Street today prepared for the vast distributions of interest and dividend payments to stockholders expected to amount to some $300,000,000. Inasmuch as Thursday is a holiday, banks were adjusting their funds to meet the payments and as a result a firm tone was prevalent in the money market.

Apparently unafraid of the stock market's allegedly "vulnerable" position, many traders were leaving the street for a long week-end vacation. Many will not return until next Monday, although, unless something unforseen happens, the stock exchange will do business as usual on Friday and Saturday.

Thus far no application has been made to close the exchange on Saturday. It is known that the large ware houses would object strenuously to such procedure as it would involve severe loss to them.

FIND DEATH THREAT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Detectives were asked to find the writer of a death note left in the auto of B. Bornheim, 16, junior high student. Bornheim is a brother-in-law of Deputy Sheriff Ralph Paul. The note read: "B. Bornheim. Beware, your life is a large price. I am out to get you as soon as I can. Death is my weapon."

PHYSICIAN ISSUES STATEMENT SAYING CONDITION IS GRAVE

Lung Congestion And Pleurisy Bothers British Ruler

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Lord Dawson of Penn informed the British cabinet today that King George's illness is of a "serious nature."

While the king's physician was issuing a formal description of His Majesty's ailment, the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne, was speeding across Africa on the start of a race to his father's bedside.

Lord Dawson's statement was contained in a letter to Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, and apparently was issued in response to a request from the cabinet that it be informed in detail of the king's exact condition.

The letter, as read at a meeting of the cabinet, follows in full:

"My Dear Home Secretary:

"I gather from you that the cabinet wish a more detailed opinion of his majesty's illness than is contained in the daily bulletins. Will you therefore inform them as follows:

"The king is suffering from an inflammation (congestion) of the right lung with extensive plastic pleurisy of the right side which is a painful condition. Such infection must from its nature be serious.

"In all illnesses of this character there must be anxiety which will continue for the present, but I am happy to say that the king passed a quieter night. The condition of his lung shows some improvement. His strength is maintained.

"So far, then, the illness is being controlled, its force lessened, and its symptoms alleviated and I hope its duration will be curtailed.

"Dawson of Penn."

The Prince of Wales raced by special train towards the coast of Africa today while an anxious empire watched his journey to the bedside of his father.

It was denied officially that the Prince of Wales has been summoned home, leaving the inference that the prince had taken the matter into his own hands and decided that his duty was to be with his family in a crisis.

An important code message was hurried out to the prince before he reached Dodoma. The admiralty announced that the cruiser Enterprise, one of the fastest in the British navy, had been ordered from Aden to Dar-es-Salaam, to be at the prince's disposal.

Here is the story as told today by Sir Percival Phillips:

"The incidents of the last few hours at Dodoma when the plans of the prince were changed in such dramatic fashion will never be forgotten by those who witnessed them.

"They were more poignant to the few people who saw and talked with the prince immediately after his arrival in Dodoma from the bush country, for his happiness and relief in learning, as it was thought, that his father was out of danger were extremely touching.

"Before dinner an important message in cipher, which up to that time could not be recorded owing to the lack of a key, had been repeated in clear language from the government house at Dar-es-Salaam.

"It was quickly followed by other messages from London, the contents of which caused the prince the deepest concern. He ate no dinner but made a brave effort to maintain a normal manner.

It was understood that the Duke of Glouster, third son of the king, who had been hunting in Africa with his brother, although separated from him, also would make his way to the coast to return on the Enterprise. The king's youngest son, Prince George, who is in Bermuda on the training cruiser Durban, was waiting to make a similar dash across the Atlantic. Arrangements were made to transfer Prince George to a liner in mid-Atlantic.

BELIEVE PRISONER ENDED HIS OWN LIFE

WILMINGTON, O., Nov. 28. — Lewis Parker, 39, World War veteran who walked away from the federal hospital at Chillicothe and subsequently was burned to death along the Baltimore and Ohio Railway near here, may have committed suicide by burning himself, officials said today.

Parker, it was learned, obtained a five-gallon can of gasoline from a railroad shanty and apparently saturated his clothing. He was burned to death in a cross tie fire at the bottom of a B. and O. embankment and it was believed he had rolled into the blaze accidentally. The body has been sent to Chillicothe and will be sent to Toledo where Parker's relatives reside.

But somehow, it sort of takes much of the enjoyment out of that meal to know that in Xenia there will be families in absolute want for food—children not properly nourished—deprived through poverty from the very necessities of life.

Some, perhaps, may then realize that giving is not an obligation, but a privilege and look more generously toward the Community Chest.

It's tough not to have something good to eat on Thanksgiving. There are many who won't. The Chest is not yet full. Call Chest 283 now and tell them you want to give—or want to give more.

Did You Know? Ohio To Celebrate Thanksgiving

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—There is no news value in the announcement that Ohio will observe Thanksgiving tomorrow, except perhaps in far-off Polynesia.

There is, however, a thought or two in the manner in which this pretty state goes about celebrating and a certain interest in the sentimental review incident to the day of thanks.

To begin with there is an item indicating how the state breaks away from time-honored customs. A check of the wholesale places, meat markets and suchlike, reveals the startling knowledge that the turkey is losing his place as the stereotyped emblem of Thanksgiving Day.

The United Press query, "Selling many turkeys?" was answered promptly by most poultry and meat dealers.

"No. They're eating pork this year." Some said hogs, some pigs, some chops—it was the same. Pork was far ahead in popularity. It became a question of whether some orchard magnate might have spread the idea in order to popularize applesauce.

The principal item on the Thanksgiving table of most public institutions in the state where special dinners will be served and in all charitable institutions where baskets will be packed, is also pork, the survey revealed.

While the home is castle in the usual plan of tomorrow's merriment, there is an appreciable list of goings-on—for instance:

1. Special church services.
2. Football games, officially closing the gridiron season for Ohio teams.
3. No school.
4. Either no work or less work for Mr. Citizen.
4 Special performances at the theaters.
6. Especially arranged musical programs on the radios.
7. Big dinners.
8. The foreboding of a week of hash luncheons.

Students in the public schools, colleges and universities of the state, with very few exceptions, were down for dismissal this afternoon for the remainder of the week.

The colored section of Columbus came forth with an embellished announcement of a big dance and Mardi Gras, an "annual formal ball" and other carryings-on.

But there is another angle to Ohio's Thanksgiving. It is the line-up of homeless and needy who will flock to the Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, organized charities and just anywhere there's an opening, in desperate attempts to make the day mean something to them.

"No man need knock on doors or ask alms on the street here Thanksgiving Day," an official of one of the charity houses said after reviewing plans of institutions all over the state to make holiday for Ohio's unfortunates. But his list did not mention the man with beggar's clothing and the pride of blue-blood; nor the widow with children to provide for and not the slightest idea of how to go about taking advantage of organized charity.

Practically all public and private offices, stores and other business places are to be closed all day tomorrow.

Baskets will be distributed to families of Ohio Penitentiary prisoners.

Special church services will be held at the penitentiary tomorrow morning and a special dinner will be spread, Warden Thomas announced. The morsel is to be pork. County jails, city prisons and workhouses over the state will fare similarly.

While some give concentration to the significance of the day, others will use it like they use all other holidays—an excuse to celebrate, but there are two men in "death row" at Ohio Penitentiary who face, perhaps, a more difficult mental problem in the endeavor to realize something to be thankful for. They are Stanley Hoppe, Toledo clubber, and John Rucker, Cincinnati negro, who are schedued to die in the electric chair the day after Thanksgiving.

Generally, however, the state's prospect for a big holiday is cheery.

TWO ARRESTED AS OMAHA AX SLAYER

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 28.—Omaha officers were confronted today with the problem of deciding which, if either of two men is guilty of three ax murders here.

Jake Bird, Negro suspect, again had been identified as the assailant of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stribling and is connected by some authorities with the three murders. At the same time in Spokane, Wash., Elmer Williams, 24, a former Nebraska Negro, confessed to the hatchet murders when arrested.

INJURED IN CRASH

GALLIPOLIS, O., Nov. 28.—Relatives here have received word that Jacob Vervenne was seriously injured when his automobile was wrecked in a collision with another car at Hackensack, N. Y. Vervenne is a brother-in-law of Ex-Congressman Robert M. Switzer.

THIRD TYPHOON IS MENACING PHILIPPINES; DEATH TOLL HIGH

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 28.—With the death toll of two storms in the past week still undetermined, the Philippine Islands and the Island of Guam today prepared for a third typhoon which was reported approaching.

Fragmentary reports from remote sections of the islands indicated the death toll would total more than 100.

Information of death and destruction was gained from native runners. All lines of communication have been broken.

Food and medical supplies will be taken to the southern groups of islands today by four U. S. destroyers.

Governor General Henry L. Stimson and a group of army and navy communication chiefs were to meet today in an effort to formulate plans to re-establish communication.

The Island of Samar, where the wind velocity exceeded seventy miles an hour, received the brunt of Monday's storm. Ninety per cent of the houses on this island were damaged, at least 20 per cent of the crops were destroyed and roads were reported blocked.

HOOVER IS WARMLY RECEIVED; MAKES FRIENDS IN CORINTO

President-Elect Is In Costa, Rica, His Fourth Stop

PUNTA ARENAS, COSTA RICA, Nov. 28.—President-elect Herbert Hoover landed in Costa Rica today, the fourth country he has visited on his good-will tour of Central and South America.

The battleship Maryland, carrying the Hoover party, came up the Gulf of Nicoya early this morning and Mr. Hoover landed at 8:15 a. m.

The president-elect was enthusiastically greeted by a large crowd. He entrained at once for San Jose, the capital, where he will be welcomed officially.

The Maryland left Corinto, Nicaragua, at 2:15 p. m. yesterday.

Hoover captivated the hearts of the "man in the street" in Corinto, by walking through the dusty streets like an ordinary citizen, his face lit up with a boyish, friendly smile. Children and natives hailed him as he passed and shouted: "viva Hoover, Moncada, and friendship."

It was predicted that Hoover's good will mission accomplished more in this concluding gesture of his Nicaraguan call than reams of diplomatic correspondence lasting months would achieve.

Hoover expressed deep thankfulness that the national crisis, "into which my own country has been drawn has now reached a basis of solution for which I wish to congratulate the leaders of the Nicaraguan nation."

President Diaz expressed his satisfaction at meeting the president-elect of the United States in the closing days of his term of office and said:

"I salute you, Mr. Hoover who took this great step which stimulates sympathetic sentiments toward the United States on the part of all nations of the world.

"Nicaraguan people express to you our cordial disposition to cooperate in great continental harmony."

Both Moncada and Diaz in interviews expressed the wish that United States marines would supervise Nicaraguan elections four years hence, while the Nicaraguan national guard, was being built up in efficiency through proper training.

GRID EDITION

THE GAZETTE publishes today its annual football edition before the big game of the season, the contest between Central High and Springfield High at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday afternoon that will wind up the season.

This edition was accomplished with the assistance of Central High students, who gained practical experience in selling advertising by calling on Xenia merchants in co-operation with the advertisement department of THE GAZETTE.

The school receives a percentage of the advertising revenue of this issue, which will be applied to the athletic department funds and Xenia merchants co-operated generously in helping the school. All that remains to make the occasion a success is for the team to defeat Springfield Thursday.

PROPOSED BILL MAY COMBINE NAVY AND WAR DEPARTMENTS

Suggests Creation Of Department Of National Defense

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A bill to create a department of national defense supplanting the present war and navy departments will be introduced this session by Rep. W. Frank James, Republican, of Michigan, ranking member of the house military affairs committee. He told the United Press today a national defense department to control all U. S. military and naval activities would increase efficiency of the present defense strength nearly 100 per cent.

"At present, there is continual friction between the war and navy heads," James said, "but under my plan perfect coordination would be effected.

"The secretary of national defense would have supervision of the army, navy, marine corps and air service. Duplication of activities would be eliminated."

James favors reorganization of America's military system "for the good of the country." He explained that the assistant secretaries of the national defense department would automatically make up the national defense council and this strategy board would guide this destinies of American armament.

There would be four assistant secretaries of the new department. They would be in charge of the army, the navy and marine corps, the air service and the purchasing bureau.

FARM RELIEF WILL DEPEND ON HOOVER IS PRESENT BELIEF

Congress Expected To Rely On President For Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A disposition to place responsibility for the time and nature of farm relief legislation on President-Elect Hoover is growing among senators and representatives assembling here for the short session of congress.

The wide divergence of opinion among agricultural leaders on the farm relief bill subject has created a tangle which many believe Hoover himself must straighten out.

Senator McNary, Repn., Oregon, is the leader of an apparently minority group intent upon passing a bill as soon as possible. They advocate speedy enactment of a measure incorporating all important provisions of the old McNary-Haugen bill except the equalization fee.

They argue that this measure embraces the program outlined by Hoover in his campaign speeches and therefore will be satisfactory to him. Furthermore, they point out that early action will be necessary to fulfill Hoover's St. Louis promise of farm relief before the next harvest.

Senator Borah, Repn., Idaho, is the spokesman of another group desirous of having a special session of congress called by Hoover and guided by his recommendations to pass farm relief legislation.

Borah and his followers profess to believe the farm relief problem is too complicated for solution at the short session. They say it involves passage of three measures—a marketing bill, a surplus crop disposal bill and tariff revision to give agricultural products higher protection.

WAVE OF INFLUENZA CLAIMS 17 LIVES

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28—Health authorities of Los Angeles are considering adoption of strict measures to combat the wave of influenza that has taken seventeen lives this week.

Forty-two persons have died from the disease since Nov. 1, health officers estimated today. City health officers said that a check showed 2,132 persons in the city limits suffering from influenza.

Pasadent schools have been closed because of the epidemic as have schools of Monrovia, Garden Grove, La Habra, Fullerton and Placentia.

In Hollywood, more than a dozen screen celebrities are reported ill of influenza.

"Y." FOUNDER DIES

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—Funeral services for Mrs. Maria Louisa Barrett Chamberlin, 87, one of the founders of the Y. W. C. A., will be held here Friday. Mrs. Chamberlin died yesterday after an illness of three months.

She was president-secretary of the Y. W. C. A. for sixteen years after its founding.

SHOT BY HUNTER

LANCASTER, O., Nov. 28.—Morton Pairan, Lancaster, was seriously injured yesterday when he was shot accidentally by a companion while they were hunting. Twenty buckshot lodged in the youth's body.

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING ARE ALREADY DEAD"

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Wesley McCafferty, 40, of Champaign County, was back at the London Prison Farm today puzzled as to whether his ingenuity and business acumen are assets or liabilities.

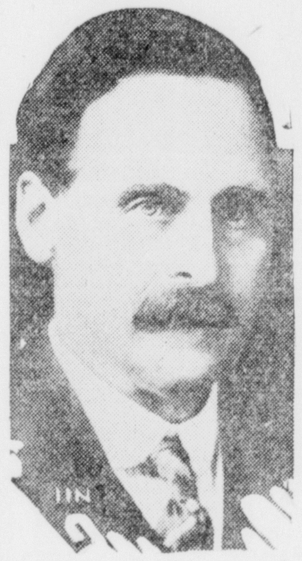

McCafferty was released from the prison on parole. He had been serving from one to three years for failure to support his wife and children. He determined they should not want again but decided he would earn his way with his brain.

Accordingly McCafferty took note of the advertisement of a soap concern which wanted lists of prospective customers. Those sending in good, long lists, were to get a bar of soap for each name. Fair enough! So McCafferty hied himself to an Urbana grave yard and laboriously copied a long list of more or less select names. He sent the list in then went to the general delivery window at the postoffice and claimed his bar of soap for each name along with all the samples the company sent the graveyard people. He went into the soap business and cleaned up considerably.

McCafferty's success along this line led him to another project which involved signatures petitioning the city for improvements. This was also a phantom list.

McCafferty was returned to the penitentiary today under regulations pertaining to "violation of parole."

BLAME HEAPED UPON VESTRIS MASTER IS PARTIALLY LIFTED

Second Officer Of Ship Blames False Messages.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The blame that has been heaped upon the head of Capt. William J. Carey, dead master of the steamship Vestris, began to lighten today as the government continued its investigation into the sinking of the Lamport and Holt liner.

Previous testimony before United States Commissioner Francis O'Neill has accused Carey of fatal delay in sending out an SOS when the vessel was sinking off the Virginia capes and of negligence in ordering passengers into lifeboats.

Yesterday Leslie Watson, second officer of the Vestris, declared Carey was deceived concerning the condition of the ship by "reassuring messages" sent up from the engine room. Watson's testimony was virtually the only one given during the course of the hearings which placed Carey in a favorable light. Members of the Vestris crew who took the stand were generally reticent about Carey's part in the disaster, but some passengers have been outspoken in their criticism of the captain.

Watson, who said he acted as messenger between Carey and the engine room, testified that the reports sent up to the master of the vessel were that the Vestris could be kept afloat.

The other important witness of the day was Harry Wheeler, marine superintendent of the Lamport and Holt line, who offered four conjectures as to why the Vestris sank. They were:

1. Rupture of shell plating.
2. Parting of seam riveting.
3. Fracture of sea connection.
4. Straining of the coal ports.

Members of the Vestris crew testified before the department of commerce hearing which is being conducted to determine whether federal inspectors were negligent in their examination of the ship. Both hearings will be continued today.

MONEY MARKET FIRM BEFORE HOLIDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Wall Street today prepared for the vast distributions of interest and dividend payments to stockholders expected to amount to some $300,000,000. Inasmuch as Thursday is a holiday, banks were adjusting their funds to meet the payments and as a result a firm tone was prevalent in the money market.

Apparently unafraid of the stock market's allegedly "vulnerable" position, many traders were leaving the street for a long week-end vacation. Many will not return until next Monday, although, unless something unforseen happens, the stock exchange will do business as usual on Friday and Saturday.

Thus far no application has been made to close the exchange on Saturday. It is known that the large ware houses would object strenuously to such procedure as it would involve severe loss to them.

FIND DEATH THREAT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Detectives were asked to find the writer of a death note left in the auto of B. Bornheim, 16, junior high student. Bornheim is a brother-in-law of Deputy Sheriff Ralph Paul. The note read: "B. Bornheim, Beware, your life is a large price. I am out to get you as soon as I can. Death is my weapon."

PHYSICIAN ISSUES STATEMENT SAYING CONDITION IS GRAVE

Lung Congestion And Pleurisy Bothers British Ruler

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Lord Dawson of Penn informed the British cabinet today that King George's illness is of a "serious nature."

While the king's physician was issuing a formal description of His Majesty's ailment, the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne, was speeding across Africa on the start of a race to his father's bedside.

Lord Dawson's statement was contained in a letter to Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, and apparently was issued in response to a request from the cabinet that it be informed in detail of the king's exact condition.

The letter, as read at a meeting of the cabinet, follows in full:

"My Dear Home Secretary:

"I gather from you that the cabinet wish a more detailed opinion of his majesty's illness than is contained in the daily bulletins. Will you therefore inform them as follows:

"The king is suffering from an inflammation (congestion) of the right lung with extensive plastic pleurisy of the right side which is a painful condition. Such infection must from its nature be serious.

"In all illnesses of this character there must be anxiety which will continue for the present, but I am happy to say that the king passed a quieter night. The condition of his lung shows some improvement. His strength is maintained.

"So far, then, the illness is being controlled, its force lessened, and its symptoms alleviated and I hope its duration will be curtailed.

"Dawson of Penn."

The Prince of Wales raced by special train towards the coast of Africa today while an anxious empire watched his journey to the bedside of his father.

It was denied officially that the Prince of Wales has been summoned home, leaving the inference that the prince had taken the matter into his own hands and decided that his duty was to be with his family in a crisis.

An important code message was hurried out to the prince before he reached Dodoma. The admiralty announced that the cruiser Enterprise, one of the fastest in the British navy, had been ordered from Aden to Dar-es-Salaam, to be at the prince's disposal.

Here is the story as told today by Sir Percival Phillips:

"The incidents of the last few hours at Dodoma when the plans of the prince were changed in such dramatic fashion will never be forgotten by those who witnessed them.

"They were more poignant to the few people who saw and talked with the prince immediately after his arrival in Dodoma from the bush country, for his happiness and relief in learning, as it was thought, that his father was out of danger were extremely touching.

"Before dinner an important message in cipher, which up to that time could not be recorded owing to the lack of a key, had been repeated in clear language from the government house at Dar-es-Salaam.

"It was quickly followed by other messages from London, the contents of which caused the prince the deepest concern. He ate no dinner but made a brave effort to maintain a formal manner.

It was understood that the Duke of Glouster, third son of the king, who had been hunting in Africa with his brother, although separated from him, also would make his way to the coast to return on the Enterprise. The king's youngest son, Prince George, who is in Bermuda on the training cruiser Durban, was waiting to make a similar dash across the Atlantic. Arrangements were made to transfer Prince George to a liner in mid-Atlantic.

BELIEVE PRISONER ENDED HIS OWN LIFE

WILMINGTON, O., Nov. 28.—Lewis Parker, 39, World War veteran who walked away from the federal hospital at Chillicothe and subsequently was burned to death along the Baltimore and Ohio Railway near here, may have committed suicide by burning himself, officials said today.

Parker, it was learned, obtained a five-gallon can of gasoline from a railroad shanty and apparently saturated his clothing. He was burned to death in a cross tie fire at the bottom of a B. and O. embankment and it was believed he had rolled into the blaze accidentally. The body has been sent to Chillicothe and will be sent to Toledo where Parker's relatives reside.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—What price presidency?

An early death!

This is one item which cannot be found in the most detailed accounting of any campaign. Yet it is the one tally that has marked the final balance sheet of every presidency from George Washington's down.

A perusal of the records show that the average term of life left a man when he is through with a presidency is but eight years!

And the average age at death is 68 years.

Which is some less the old span of three score and ten! And considerably less than the increased period of longevity, which science is constantly extending.

But in spite of the prolongation of life in most professions, the span of the ex-presidents' grows shorter!

For the term of life of the men holding the chief executive's office since 1857 (the half-way point since the first inauguration) has been reduced to five years after leaving office! And the average age of death, since Buchanan's administration, has been reduced to 62 years!

(Naturally, the record of William H. Taft, our only living ex-president, and that of Calvin Coolidge, who retires next March, have been kept out of the compilation).

* * *

Whether it is the increased strain of office that makes for this decreased life is conjectural. Each administration had its own problems; and each weighs heavily on the occupant of the White House. Who is to say that the cares that confronted Washington were any less taxing than those which worried Harding?

Statistics usually can be twisted to suit divergent views. But even a glance at the figures under the pictures above show that the presidency is no place for a man to live long.

John Adams, sometimes called the "unhappiest president" (because he felt that he wasn't wanted as chief executive) lived twenty-five years after leaving office. That is a record for Chief Justice Taft, and President Coolidge to shoot after.

And Thomas Jefferson, who remained the leader of his party even after leaving the White House, lived to be 92! That is the oldest age ever attained by any of our presidents. (But he died almost penniless, having retired from office with some glory—and $20,000 debts).

James A. Garfield died the youngest. He was only 49 when assassinated in office. Others who passed on during their term of presidency were William Henry Harrison, James K. Polk, Zachary Taylor, Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley and Warren G. Harding.

Woodrow Wilson became an invalid while still in office. He lingered on for three years—passing on half a year after Harding, his successor to the presidency, had died while in office.

* * *

Some say there's a "jinx" on ex-presidents. But that is derided by those who point to smiling Justice Taft. But he alone survives! Two of his successors have gone on. But soon Coolidge will stand with him—on the pinnacle so hard to attain, and still harder to retain—for long.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

FROM INDIA

Sarojini Naidu is a woman of considerable magnetism. She has labored long in India as an associate of Mahatma Ghandi for the betterment of her own people. She is in America on a lecture tour, and I had a very interesting talk with her recently.

She dresses picturesquely in the costume of her country, and while she talked to me she had her feet tucked up under her as she sat in an American overstuffed chair at the Algonquin Hotel, New York.

I was anxious to learn something of an intelligent Indian's idea of the future of India. Mrs. Naidu was not averse to talking about this, but it was evident that she was accustomed to having Americans ask questions about child marriage in India, and she would revert to this subject frequently.

* * *

Since Katherine Mayo published her book, "Mother India," Americans have talked much about the child marriages. Mrs. Naidu says the conception of Indian life Americans are likely to forget that India is a tropical country, and girls mature there at least two years earlier than in this climate. And in some of the American states your girls are allowed to marry at eleven."

I told the lecturer that I thought this an error, and hoped she would verify her information before using it publicly. Since the conversation I have consulted the World Almanac and found that the lowest legal age at which girls may marry in any of the states is twelve. Which indicates that Indians may make errors in talking about America, even as Americans err in talking and writing about India. It is so easy to make mistakes, and such a bother to be sure of one's facts!

* * *

Mrs. Naidu speaks optimistically and enthusiastically of India's future. She feels sure that India faces a period of self-realization and expansion.

"In what direction will India expand?" I asked.

"Africa furnishes the most available territory. Indians long ago went to South Africa and their early labors made the country fit for white settlement. But there is much trouble with British bars against Indian immigration."

Mrs. Naidu appeals for fair consideration of India by Americans. "Our customs and religion and culture differ from yours," she says, "but as we do not feel called upon to criticize Americans for chewing gum and spitting and doing many other things that are not customary in our country, I hope Americans who visit India will observe our different customs with a similar lack of desire to find fault."

Poems that Live

LULLABY, O LULLABY

LULLABY! O lullaby!
Baby, hush that little cry!
Light is dying
Bats are flying,
Bees today with work have done,
So, till comes the morrow's sun,
Let sleep kiss those bright eyes dry!
Lullaby! O lullaby.

Lullaby! O lullaby!
Hushed are all things far and nigh;
Flowers are closing,
Birds reposing,
All sweet things with life are done.
Sweet, till dawns the morning sun,
Sleep, then kiss those blue eyes dry,
Lullaby! O lull-by!

Which is some less the old span of three score and ten! And considerably less than the increased period of longevity, which science is constantly extending.

But in spite of the prolongation of life in most professions, the span of the ex-presidents' grows shorter!

For the term of life of the men holding the chief executive's office since 1857 (the half-way point since the first inauguration) has been reduced to five years after leaving office! And the average age of death, since Buchanan's administration, has been reduced to 62 years!

(Naturally, the record of William H. Taft, our only living ex-president, and that of Calvin Coolidge, who retires next March, have been kept out of the compilation).

* * *

Whether it is the increased strain of office that makes for this decreased life is conjectural. Each administration had its own problems; and each weighs heavily on the occupant of the White House. Who is to say that the cares that confronted Washington were any less taxing than those which worried Harding?

Statistics usually can be twisted to suit divergent views. But even a glance at the figures under the pictures above show that the presidency is no place for a man to live long.

John Adams, sometimes called the "unhappiest president" (because he felt that he wasn't wanted as chief executive) lived twenty-five years after leaving office. That is a record for Chief Justice Taft, and President Coolidge to shoot after.

And Thomas Jefferson, who remained the leader of his party even after leaving the White House, lived to be 92! That is the oldest age ever attained by any of our presidents. (But he died almost penniless, having retired from office with some glory—and $20,000 debts).

James A. Garfield died the youngest. He was only 49 when assassinated in office. Others who passed on during their term of presidency were William Henry Harrison, James K. Polk, Zachary Taylor, Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley and Warren G. Harding.

Woodrow Wilson became an invalid while still in office. He lingered on for three years—passing on half a year after Harding, his successor to the presidency, had died while in office.

* * *

Some say there's a "jinx" on ex-presidents. But that is derided by those who point to smiling Justice Taft. But he alone survives! Two of his successors have gone on. But soon Coolidge will stand with him—on the pinnacle so hard to attain, and still harder to retain—for long.

The World And All

FROM INDIA

I was anxious to learn something of the future of India. Mrs. Naidu was not averse to talking about this, but it was evident that she was accustomed to having Americans ask questions about child marriage in India, and she would revert to this subject frequently.

* * *

Since Katherine Mayo published her book, "Mother India," Americans have talked much about the child marriages. Mrs. Naidu says the conception of Indian life Americans have received from the Mayo book are all wrong, very much exaggerated, and altogether unjust.

"It is true that in India girls marry young," she says, "but Americans are likely to forget that India is a tropical country, and girls mature there at least two years earlier than in this climate. And in some of the American states your girls are allowed to marry at eleven."

I told the lecturer that I thought this an error, and hoped she would verify her information before using it publicly. Since the conversation I have consulted the World Almanac and found that the lowest legal age at which girls may marry in any of the states is twelve. Which indicates that Indians may make errors in talking about America, even as Americans err in talking and writing about India. It is so easy to make mistakes, and such a bother to be sure of one's facts!

* * *

Mrs. Naidu speaks optimistically and enthusiastically of India's future. She feels sure that India faces a period of self-realization and expansion.

"In what direction will India expand?" I asked.

"Africa furnishes the most available territory. Indians long ago went to South Africa and their early labors made the country fit for white settlement. But there is much trouble with British bars against Indian immigration."

Mrs. Naidu appeals for fair consideration of India by Americans. "Our customs and religion and culture differ from yours," she says, "but as we do not feel called upon to criticize Americans for chewing gum and spitting and doing many other things that are not customary in our country, I hope Americans who visit India will observe our different customs with a similar lack of desire to find fault."

Poems that Live

LULLABY, O LULLABY

LULLABY! O lullaby!
Baby, hush that little cry!
Light is dying
Bats are flying,
Bees today with work have done,
So, till comes the morrow's sun,
Let sleep kiss those bright eyes dry!
Lullaby! O lullaby.

Lullaby! O lullaby!
Hushed are all things far and nigh;
Flowers are closing,
Birds reposing,
All sweet things with life are done.
Sweet, till dawns the morning sun,
Sleep, then kiss those blue eyes dry,
Lullaby! O lull-by!

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention.

There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing . . . watch the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and be sure the indicator rod never registers below low (L).

If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the supply becomes insufficient to oil all parts as they should be oiled.

To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the chassis of your car lubricated every 500 miles. This has been made easy through the use of the high pressure grease gun system.

Proper oiling and greasing mean so much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done.

See your Ford dealer regularly. He is especially well-fitted to lubricate the new Model A car and he will do a good, thorough job at a fair price.

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention.

There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing . . . watch the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and be sure the indicator rod never registers below low (L).

If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the supply becomes insufficient to oil all parts as they should be oiled.

To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the chassis of your car lubricated every 500 miles. This has been made easy through the use of the high pressure grease gun system.

Proper oiling and greasing mean so much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done.

See your Ford dealer regularly. He is especially well-fitted to lubricate the new Model A car and he will do a good, thorough job at a fair price.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A PESSIMIST—Then I said, I have laboured in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God.—Isa. 49:4.

POLITICAL BOSSES

The American people have always disliked the rule of political bosses and machines where they exist, but they fail to realize that the people who rule these organizations obtain power as the result of performing certain services that would be neglected but for them.

One way they obtain support in the great cities where these machines flourish, is through looking after the needs of poor and struggling people. Take the case of some family the head of which cannot find work. In many cases the political ward leader would find him a job, possibly on the police force or in some public service. In that case an act of helpfulness has been performed, and the family that got the benefit from it is very grateful to that politician, and apt to vote as he suggests.

But it frequently happens, when these acts of personal helpfulness are performed, that people are appointed to office who are incompetent. Or they are sometimes worse, and will use their public positions to collect graft or in corrupt ways.

The heads of the political organization do not commonly approve such graft, and would not collect any themselves. But they regard these evils as inevitable, and as it would affect their whole system of political influence to war too fiercely on such wrongs, they are apt to overlook them unless they get too rank.

When the community performs all the acts of helpfulness that should be performed, the people do not depend so much on their ward politicians and are not swayed by them.

If all the people voted at all elections and primaries and became intelligent on these questions, the bosses and machines would have to make their methods unobjectionable or they would lose their power.

CREATING PROSPERITY

Prosperity means good business, and good business means active buying. Buying moves in a circle.

There are four factors in the circle of buying—the manufacturer, the jobber, the retailer and the buyer. Together these factors constitute the public. The manufacturer, the jobber or retailer is in a separate class from the buyer only so far as his business is concerned. In every other relation in life he is one small individual in the great mass called the public, and he is affected by the same living conditions that affect the latter. Outside his own business he, too, is a buyer, so he joins the public in starting the buying impulse that sweeps around the circle. He buys the comforts and necessities of life, and he wants reasonable prices the same as the public does.

Progressive merchants promote interest and create demand for their goods by aggressive advertising and so join hands with the public in bringing about prosperity and keeping the community thriving.

FORCE MAY NOT BE NECESSARY

"It is," declares a writer in The New York Times, discussing the Kellogg peace pact, "only a moral platitude without enforcing provisions."

The same thing may be said of the Golden Rule, which has done pretty well in the last two thousand years, although it started with the same handicap.

Both documents came from dreamers. The practical men of this world use force—and where does it sometimes get them?

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHAT IS GOVERNMENT?

We have a careless way of thinking that the government is one thing and the people are another. We think of the government as standing at one side ready to enforce something or other on the people—even against the people's will. Of course the government and the people are one and the same thing. The reason we do not have prohibition in this country instead of merely a large amount of TALK about prohibition is that not enough people want the enforcement of prohibition. The government—which is the people—cannot enforce upon the people what the people do not want.

* * *

"ENFORCEMENT"

Please note that in the above paragraph the thing referred to is not "prohibition" but the "enforcement of prohibition." It is very probable that most of the people actually do want prohibition. They have voted in favor of it and they would doubtless do so again in practically every state in the union. But it is also apparently true that they do not want it enforced to the degree that would make it impossible for them to have a drink quietly on the side.

The well-to-do want it enforced on the poor and the poor are perfectly willing to have it enforced on the wellto-do. A great number of people—perhaps the greater number—believe prohibition is a splendid idea, always deserving of their vote. But enforcement—that is another matter.

THE MOUNTAINEER

One can understand the perplexity of the mountain man in the south. He can not understand why he can not turn his corn into liquor as properly as he can turn it into meal. It is his corn, and he is willing to do it quietly and unobtrusively. He is further perplexed when he finds himself in prison looking through barred windows at his free and respectable brethren who bought the product of his corn.

It is a strange situation wherein the seller goes to jail, while the buyer merely turns to another market.

CHECKING UP

Now that election is over we will do well to look back over some of the things we have believed and some of the things we have said. After a time of abnormal excitement and distorted opinions it is proper to check up on ourselves and try to recall just how we acted and what we said. All with a view to not being quite so absurd in the next campaign.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By WALTER WINCHELL

NEW YORK — Because the newspapers in New York were slow in retracting an untrue campaign story, a local legislator will introduce several bills intended to make the papers sorry. Bills will be drawn so as to stop various privileges enjoyed by newspapers, and delivery trucks rushing to ferries and train terminals will be forced to observe traffic rules, etc. In the guise of relieving "traffic congestion" the proposed bills will get as many news stands as possible off the corners.

The "inside" is that the legislator is being wised up (on the several rackets enjoyed by newspapers) by a former circulation man who has an ax to grind.

"No," said the girl, "but if my husband knew about this he'd divorce me and I wouldn't rate any alimony, and we Ziegfeld girls simply must live!"

"Why?" growled eavesdropping wisecracker.

Phoney Philm-Philam

Twentyfive dollars for a thirty-cent roll of film seemed to be a fair rate of exchange of the Vestris' survivor with a Dutch accent. During the invasion of news phtographers aboard the vessels bringin gin the rescued Vestrisites, film was in demand and purchases were in the raw. Roll film was bought from the survivors at $25 and up, undeveloped.

Many of the negatives upon being developed revealed absolutely nothing. After the smoke cleared and the various hocus-pocus men compared notes they found that the man with the Dutch accent had peddled about six rolls of "phoney-philm" at twenty-five smacks a crack.

WHY NOT?

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Clerk William Tyler Page, of the house of representatives, is rushed just now, getting up the roster of members who will be entitled to sit in the lower branch of the Seventy-first congress, presumably to be called in special session soon after the present — Seventieth — congress adjourns, March 4.

This prospective extra session is what hustles Clerk Page with his job.

Ordinarily, when one congress ends, he has all summer and fall to check over the next list of representatives. This time it seems unlikely he will have any such interval.

There is no danger, however, that Page will be swamped by his work.

He undoubtedly knows fully twice as much about congress as any other person in the United States.

For 47 years he has held one position or another in the house of representatives. He began as a page, when he was 13, and worked up to the clerkship, which he will have filled for a decade this coming winter.

In point of service, he antedates Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, the oldest member of congress, by nine years. Senator Warren's service has not been continuous, either. There was a two-year break in it. Page never has missed a session since 1881.

Nicholas Longworth is the tenth speaker Clerk Page has known personally, although it is true it was only as a little boy that he knew Joseph W. Keifer of Ohio, who wielded the gavel when Page made his debut on the representatives' floor.

He could write a history of Czar Tom B. Reed's regime, and of the uprising of the "progressive" representatives, when Uncle Joe Cannon was shorn of his power.

He can recall men like James G. Blaine, William McKinley, John G. Carlisle—all those demigods of the past—as perfectly ordinary congressmen, whom their fellow members called by their first names.

Clerk Page has hardly known anybody since childhood, in fact, who cannot be looked up in an encyclopedia, if he is dead, or found in "Who's Who," if he is still in the land of the living.

William Tyler Page has an extraordinary line of reminiscences of these great personages, too.

He could turn out an amazing volume of them if he would.

All he has given to the world in the way of literature, however, is "Page's Congressional Handbook" — that and "The American's Creed."

They are all right, as far as they go, to be sure, but their author is decidedly less prolific with his pen than might very reasonably be wished, considering the wealth of the material he has packed away in his memory.

Probably Clerk Page does not estimate his recollections at what they really are worth.

He is one of the most unassuming of individuals—an ideal clerk of the house of representatives, but seemingly without an ambition to be anything else. Once he did run for congress, indeed, in his home state of Maryland, but was beaten, and that apparently satisfied him that elective office was not his metier.

And as long as he cares for his clerkship it is highly unlikely he will be disturbed in it, no matter how parties in Washington may come and go.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

A prominent artist told me once that he considered the success of a woman's looks was not dependent on the measure of her natural endowment, but on the wit and the wisdom she displayed in making the most of what she had. I believe that quite unwittingly, he stumbled on quite a good description of what constitutes "chic."

Beautiful hair is, of course, lovely in itself, and yet I think all of you will agree that it doesn't really achieve its full glory until it has been brushed and waved and patted into the coiffure that falttters and distinguishes the head it graces.

The best suggestion I can give you on the way you ought to do your hair is to go out into the highways and the byways and annex yourself a cold, unprejudiced, unflattering triplicate mirror! If every woman could view every angle of her hair dress the world would be infinitely more attractive.

Trust in your mirror. Anybody else will flatter you, but you can rely on the verdict of a triplicate looking glass! And remember, you must have an unanimous verdict on your appearance! If you haven't bobbed your hair and you want to, put the question to your mirror. Is your contour bad? The shape of your head poor or your ears large and overprominent? Then don't bbb. Long hair will both camouflage the defects and flatter your good points.

You can't afford to act on an impulse when it comes to bobbing. While fully eight women out of ten look better with short hair, you must take into consideration the fact that if you bob you stay bobbed for two years.

A twelve-inch growth takes from two to two-and-a-half years to develop. Be honest with yourself. No style is good if its unbecoming.

Coffee Whole Wheat Toast
DINNER
Ham Loaf
Mashed Potatoes and Gravy
Carrot and Cabbage Salad with Oil Dressing
Corn Custard Rolls and Butter
Chocolate Pudding and Coffee
EVENING LUNCH
Cold Sliced Ham Loaf.
Chili Sauce
Hot Creamed Potatoes
(Potatoes left from Dinner)
Grapefruit Gelatin Salad
Baked Rice Pudding with Cream
Bread Butter Tea

This may be a Sunday or weekday menu with the word supper substituted for evening lunch. Three people are served with these portions.

Today's Recipes.

Ham Loaf — One pound ham, ground; one pound pork, ground; two eggs, one cup dried bread crumbs, one cup fine cracker crumbs, one and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon sage, salt and pepper. Mix together well and form into a loaf. A few kernels of garlic allowed to remain in the pan until the gravy is made give it a delicious flavor. Bake about an hour and a quarter.

Corn Custard—One egg, one cup strained corn pulp, one-half cup cracker crumbs, two cups milk, one-fourth cup butter, one-half teaspoon salt. Mix ingredients with beaten egg. Bake one hour in a slow oven.

Grapefruit Gelatin Salad—One pint raspberry gelatin, one grapefruit, peeled, one-half cup sugar, mayonnaise or boiled salad dressing. Divide grapefruit into sections and remove skin, sprinkle with sugar and let stand one-half hour. Pour off juice and mix with raspberry gelatin, already made, and put in icebox to harden. Place a square on crisp lettuce leaves and top with dressing.

Fruit Cake.

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

One cup sugar, butter size of egg, two eggs, one tablespoon molasses, one cup milk, one teaspoon each cinnamon, allspice, cloves and nutmeg, one cup raisins, one cup currants, one-quarter pound mixed peel, two teaspoons baking powder, flour to make stiff batter. Bake very slowly in warm oven. This recipe may be enriched with more fruit if you desire, such as figs, dates also nuts.

Roast Pork — Wipe the pork, sprinkle with salt and pepper, place on a rack in a dripping pan, and dredge meat and bottom of pan with flour. Bake in a moderate oven three to four hours, according to size of roast, basting with the fat in the pan. Put peeled potatoes in the pan with the meat three-quarters of an hour before taking from the oven.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.

ECONOMIC FREEDOM WANTED BUT NOT THE MANNISH BEARD

Superfluous Hair

The advanced enonomic freedom of women is evidently giving some concern for fear they are growing mannish. I can vouch that there is one masculine characteristic they don't want to appropriate, and that is any vestige of a beard or mustache on their faces (growing on their faces.) My mail teems with requests for relief from women who have any incipient sproutings and from those who are already so decorated.

What is the cause of superfluous hair? It may be a racial or a family trait, or there may be some disturbance of the internal secretory glands. Nobody seems to know exactly. The X-ray has been advertised rather extensively by beauty specialists as a remedy, but skin specialists warn against this, for there may be some grave danger of causing skin cancers if they are incorrectly given.

The only method of removing superfluous hairs permanently that we know of now is electrolysis in the hands of an expert. If this cannot be used for some reason, then shaving or the use of depillatories (hair destroyers) or epilating (pulling out) are recommended.

Pusey, an eminent skin specialist, believes there is no danger in epilating. Not long ago he gave a formula for an epilating wax in one of the medical journals which I ran in the column. I received the following letter a short time after:

"After mixing the materials myself and finding that the result was nil, I had the pharmacist fill the forumla for me with the same result. Here is the difficulty: Applied warm, it sticketh not and so no good cometh. Then it is applied so hot that it almost burns. While cooling, it buckles and catches not the hairs. Also no good. Can you suggest a method of using said wax, as an answer to a maiden's prayer. P. S. I have gained four pounds in as many weeks by Petersizing, which is a record for one always so thing.

"MISS R."

On receipt of this letter I wrote to Dr. Pusey. He responded that Miss R.'s trouble might have been that she used the light-colored wax which is not satisfactory. The beeswax must be pure beeswax, which is dark. Sometimes it is necessary to try two or three samples before the right one is obtained. This makes it a little complicated.

I don't know whether there is an epilating wax on the market or not, but if there is it is probably effective and harmless.

This is the formula which Dr. Pusey gives:

Epilating Wax

Pure beeswax (dark), one part (by weight); finely powdered resin, four parts (by weight).

The wax is melted over a low fire and after melting is complete the powdered resin is poured in. The heat is continued and the mass stirred gently until entirely melted; this requires from one to two minutes.

For use it then needs to be molded. One way is to pour it into a deep dish and then criss-cross it with deep markings about three-fourths inch apart as though one were making caramels. The plate must be greased (mineral oil best) to prevent the wax from sticking to it. After it is cooled the wax is fairly brittle and the blocks can be broken off for use.

The method of removing hairs with the wax is as follows:

A block is melted by heating over a flame until it becomes soft; this can be done with a temperature that will not burn the skin. When softened, the melted wax is rubbed on the skin in the direction of the hair growth. This is pressed down with the moistened fingers, until one gets a layer about one-eighth inch thick, then is cooled with ice or cold water. After it is cooled, the edge of the wax is picked up with the nail and pulled off with a quick pull in the opposite direction to the growth of the hairs. This is only slightly uncomfortable. If the application has been well made, but few hairs remain on the surface. Those that do remain can be removed with pincers. Now a soothing cream or lotion is applied.

WOMEN, NO LONGER MARTYRS, SHOULD PLAY FAIR WITH HUBBY

Women no longer have to live with their husbands if they are cruelly treated. They can get out and hustle for themselves and be independent. But I do think that when two people take the solemn vows of marriage they should have some notion that they are intended to be for life and that there should be some effort made to live up to them. And if one marries for convenience, that doesn't alter matters. A bargain has been made and should be lived up to if possible. "Fair play's a jewel," you know.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 23 years old an dhave been married four years. When I married I married for a home. Since then I have met a man I love. He says he loves me. Now do you think I would be wise in giving up my home for this other man?

"WORRIED."

You got the home, didn't you, Worried? Your husband fulfilled his share of the deal. I should say that unless you are both dissatisfied you should stick to your bargain. One who marries without love always takes the risk of meeting some one later on, but if you take that risk you should still be true to your vows. And men who make love to married women, as a rule don't make very satisfactory husbands, so you might make a very poor exchange.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been keeping company with a young man for nearly a year, and he seems to think quite a bit of me and is very good to me. He did drink, and in the year we have had three quarrels and wouldn't see each other for weeks at a time. But we would always make up. Now he has promised not to drink and he hasn't had one for quite a while. Do you think I can trust him enough to marry him? I am six years older than he. Do you think that is too much difference in ages?

"DOUBTFUL."

I would have more faith in his giving up drink if he was convinced it was doing him harm rather than to please you. He will be angry at you some time after you are married and then to vex you will drink again, I am afraid. Six years is quite a bit of difference in ages when the older is the woman. I really think you would be happier in the long run if you gave him up. If you don't want to do that, don't be in any hurry to marry, see if he sticks to his resolution about drinking, anyway.

Peter's Adventure

A NIGHT OF TERROR

All about on the ground underneath the trees in that particular part of the Great Woods were srewn the bodies of dead and dying pigeons.

Here and there a great tree limb lay among them—a limb that, because it was no longer strong but old and weak, had broken down from the weight of the poor, scared birds crowding upon it, and carried them to the ground—straight into the power of the enemy.

It was dark now, and as Peter and the birds who had escaped with him gazed upon the sad scene, suddenly a bright blaze arose. Dove and his comrades moaned with grief.

"Now the Two-Legs are going to feast upon our brothers," wailed they, and when their hunger is satisfied and they can eat no more the Two-Legs will carry home the rest of the birds that they have captured.

"Woe is us! Why did we ever come to the Great Woods! Oh, if we had only remembered what happened last year."

"If only we can remember this next year it will be something," cried a young bird, sadly. "This is horrbile—the worst thing that ever happens in Bird-land, but I am afraid I shall forget all about it when next season comes.

"I believe I am the only one left of my family. My father and my mother and my brothers are all in that tree by the fire. I should not be surprised if the cruel Humans had caught them, every one."

Peter didn't know what to say. The Two-Legs who were doing this cruel thing were his very own people. So he kept very quiet. And the Dove continued:

"See—brighter and brighter grow the flames! Now the Two-Legs are plucking the feathers and turning the birds on long sticks before the fire. Soon the Two-Legs will begin their feast. Even the fat beasts are dining on our brothers and sisters. Oh, that I ever should have lived to see this night!"

Now the fire was blazing brightly, and its gleams spread a red glow over the trees.

Some Two-Legs, tired of their cruel sport—battering the frightened pigeons from their perches

Others were pulling the feathers from their victims, just as the boy had so often seen his mother do when she was getting the chickens ready for Sunday dinner. More were picking up the dead limbs that had dropped from the trees and breaking them up into firewood.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A PESSIMIST—Then I said, I have laboured in vain. I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God.—Isa. 49:4.

POLITICAL BOSSES

The American people have always disliked the rule of political bosses and machines where they exist, but they fail to realize that the people who rule these organizations obtain power as the result of performing certain services that would be neglected but for them.

One way they obtain support in the great cities where these machines flourish, is through looking after the needs of poor and struggling people. Take the case of some family the head of which cannot find work. In many cases the political ward leader would find him a job, possibly on the police force or in some public service. In that case an act of helpfulness has been performed, and the family that got the benefit from it is very grateful to that politician, and apt to vote as he suggests.

But it frequently happens, when these acts of personal helpfulness are performed, that people are appointed to office who are incompetent. Or they are sometimes worse, and will use their public positions to collect graft or in corrupt ways.

The heads of the political organization do not commonly approve such graft, and would not collect any themselves. But they regard these evils as inevitable, and as it would affect their whole system of political influence to war too fiercely on such wrongs, they are apt to overlook them unless they get too rank.

When the community performs all the acts of helpfulness that should be performed, the people do not depend so much on their ward politicians and are not swayed by them.

If all the people voted at all elections and primaries and became intelligent on these questions, the bosses and machines would have to make their methods unobjectionable or they would lose their power.

CREATING PROSPERITY

Prosperity means good business, and good business means active buying. Buying moves in a circle.

There are four factors in the circle of buying—the manufacturer, the jobber, the retailer and the buyer. Together these factors constitute the public. The manufacturer, the jobber or retailer is in a separate class from the buyer only so far as his business is concerned. In every other relation in life he is one small individual in the great mass called the public, and he is affected by the same living conditions that affect the latter. Outside his own business he, too, is a buyer, so he joins the public in starting the buying impulse that sweeps around the circle. He buys the comforts and necessities of life, and he wants reasonable prices the same as the public does.

Progressive merchants promote interest and create demand for their goods by aggressive advertising and so join hands with the public in bringing about prosperity and keeping the community thriving.

FORCE MAY NOT BE NECESSARY

"It is," declares a writer in The New York Times, discussing the Kellogg peace pact, "only a moral platitude without enforcing provisions."

The same thing may be said of the Golden Rule, which has done pretty well in the last two thousand years, although it started with the same handicap.

Both documents came from dreamers. The practical men of this world use force—and where does it sometimes get them?

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHAT IS GOVERNMENT?

We have a careless way of thinking that the government is one thing and the people are another. We think of the government as standing at one side ready to enforce something or other on the people—even against the people's will. Of course the government and the people are one and the same thing. The reason we do not have prohibition in this country instead of merely a large amount of TALK about prohibition is that not enough people want the enforcement of prohibition. The government—which is the people—cannot enforce upon the people what the people do not want.

* * *

"ENFORCEMENT"

Please note that in the above paragraph the thing referred to is not "prohibition" but the "enforcement of prohibition." It is very probable that most of the people actually do want prohibition. They have voted in favor of it and they would doubtless do so again in practically every state in the union. But it is also apparently true that they do not want it enforced to the degree that would make it impossible for them to have a drink quietly on the side.

The well-to-do want it enforced on the poor and the poor are perfectly willing to have it enforced on the wellto-do. A great number of people—perhaps the greater number—believe prohibition is a splendid idea, always deserving of their vote. But enforcement—that is another matter.

THE MOUNTAINEER

One can understand the perplexity of the mountain man in the south. He can not understand why he can not turn his corn into liquor as properly as he can turn it into meal. It is his corn, and he is willing to do it quietly and unobtrusively. He is further perplexed when he finds himself in prison looking through barred windows at his free and respectable brethren who bought the product of his corn.

It is a strange situation wherein the seller goes to jail, while the buyer merely turns to another market.

CHECKING UP

Now that election is over we will do well to look back over some of the things we have believed and some of the things we have said. After a time of abnormal excitement and distorted opinions it is proper to check up on ourselves and try to recall just how we acted and what we said. All with a view to not being quite so absurd in the next campaign.

The "inside" is that the legislator is being wised up (on the several rackets enjoyed by newspapers) by a former circulation man who has an ax to grind.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Clerk William Tyler Page, of the house of representatives, is rushed just now, getting up the roster of members who will be entitled to sit in the lower branch of the Seventy-first congress, presumably to be called in special session soon after the present — Seventieth — congress adjourns, March 4.

This prospective extra session is what hustles Clerk Page with his job.

Ordinarily, when one congress ends, he has all summer and fall to check over the next list of representatives. This time it seems unlikely he will have any such interval.

There is no danger, however, that Page will be swamped by his work.

He undoubtedly knows fully twice as much about congress as any other person in the United States.

For 47 years he has held one position or another in the house of representatives. He began as a page, when he was 13, and worked up to the clerkship, which he will have filled for a decade this coming winter.

In point of service, he antedates Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, the oldest member of congress, by nine years. Senator Warren's service has not been continuous, either. There was a two-year break in it. Page never has missed a session since 1881.

Nicholas Longworth is the tenth speaker Clerk Page has known personally, although it is true it was only as a little boy that he knew Joseph W. Keifer of Ohio, who wielded the gavel when Page made his debut on the representatives' floor.

He could write a history of Czar Tom B. Reed's regime, and of the uprising of the "progressive" representatives, when Uncle Joe Cannon was shorn of his power.

He can recall men like James G. Blaine, William McKinley, John G. Carlisle—all those demigods of the past—as perfectly ordinary congressmen, whom their fellow members called by their first names.

Clerk Page has hardly known anybody since childhood, in fact, who cannot be looked up in an encyclopedia, if he is dead, or found in "Who's Who," if he is still in the land of the living.

William Tyler Page has an extraordinary line of reminiscences of these great personages, too.

He could turn out an amazing volume of them if he would.

All he has given to the world in the way of literature, however, is "Page's Congressional Handbook" — that and "The American's Creed."

They are all right, as far as they go, to be sure, but their author is decidedly less prolific with his pen than might very reasonably be wished, considering the wealth of the material he has packed away in his memory.

Probably Clerk Page does not estimate his recollections at what they really are worth.

He is one of the most unassuming of individuals—an ideal clerk of the house of representatives, but seemingly without an ambition to be anything else. Once he did run for congress, indeed, in his home state of Maryland, but was beaten, and that apparently satisfied him that elective office was not his metier.

And as long as he cares for his clerkship it is highly unlikely he will be disturbed in it, no matter how parties in Washington may come and go.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

A prominent artist told me once that he considered the success of a woman's looks was not dependent on the measure of her natural endowment, but on the wit and the wisdom she displayed in making the most of what she had. I believe that quite unwittingly, he stumbled on quite a good description of what constitutes "chic."

Beautiful hair is, of course, lovely in itself, and yet I think all of you will agree that it doesn't really achieve its full glory until it has been brushed and waved and patted into the coiffure that falttters and distinguishes the head it graces.

The best suggestion I can give you on the way you ought to do your hair is to go out into the highways and the byways and annex yourself a cold, unprejudiced, unflattering triplicate mirror! If every woman could view every angle of her hair dress the world would be infinitely more attractive.

Trust in your mirror. Anybody else will flatter you, but you can rely on the verdict of a triplicate looking glass! And remember, you must have an unanimous verdict on your appearance! If you haven't bobbed your hair and you want to, put the question to your mirror. Is your contour bad? The shape of your head poor or your ears large and overprominent? Then don't bbb. Long hair will both camouflage the defects and flatter your good points.

You can't afford to act on an impulse when it comes to bobbing. While fully eight women out of ten look better with short hair, you must take into consideration the fact that if you bob you stay bobbed for two years.

A twelve-inch growth takes from two to two-and-a-half years to develop. Be honest with yourself. No style is good if its unbecoming.

Hot Creamed Potatoes
(Potatoes left from Dinner)
Grapefruit Gelatin Salad
Baked Rice Pudding with Cream
Bread Butter Tea

This may be a Sunday or weekday menu with the word supper substituted for evening lunch. Three people are served with these portions.

Today's Recipes.

Ham Loaf — One pound ham, ground; one pound pork, ground; two eggs, one cup dried bread crumbs, one cup fine cracker crumbs, one and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon sage, salt and pepper. Mix together well and form into a loaf. A few kernels of garlic allowed to remain in the pan until the gravy is made give it a delicious flavor. Bake about an hour and a quarter.

Corn Custard—One egg, one cup strained corn pulp, one-half cup cracker crumbs, two cups milk, one-fourth cup butter, one-half teaspoon salt. Mix ingredients with beaten egg. Bake one hour in a slow oven.

Grapefruit Gelatin Salad—One pint raspberry gelatin, one grapefruit, peeled, one-half cup sugar, mayonnaise or boiled salad dressing. Divide grapefruit into sections and remove skin, sprinkle with sugar and let stand one-half hour. Pour off juice and mix with raspberry gelatin, already made, and put in icebox to harden. Place a square on crisp lettuce leaves and top with dressing.

Fruit Cake.

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

One cup sugar, butter size of egg, two eggs, one tablespoon molasses, one cup milk, one teaspoon each cinnamon, allspice, cloves and nutmeg, one cup raisins, one cup currants, one-quarter pound mixed peel, two teaspoons baking powder, flour to make stiff batter. Bake very slowly in warm oven. This recipe may be enriched with more fruit if you desire, such as figs, dates, also nuts.

Roast Pork — Wipe the pork, sprinkle with salt and pepper, place on a rack in a dripping pan, and dredge meat and bottom of pan with flour. Bake in a moderate oven three to four hours, according to size of roast, basting with the fat in the pan. Put peeled potatoes in the pan with the meat three-quarters of an hour before taking from the oven.

ECONOMIC FREEDOM WANTED BUT NOT THE MANNISH BEARD

Superfluous Hair

The advanced enonomic freedom of women is evidently giving some concern for fear they are growing mannish. I can vouch that there is one masculine characteristic they don't want to appropriate, and that is any vestige of a beard or mustache on their faces (growing on their faces.) My mail teems with requests for relief from women who have any incipient sproutings and from those who are already so decorated.

What is the cause of superfluous hair? It may be a racial or a family trait, or there may be some disturbance of the internal secretory glands. Nobody seems to know exactly. The X-ray has been advertised rather extensively by beauty specialists as a remedy, but skin specialists warn against this, for there may be some grave danger of causing skin cancers if they are incorrectly given.

The only method of removing superfluous hairs permanently that we know of now is electrolysis in the hands of an expert. If this cannot be used for some reason, then shaving or the use of depillatories (hair destroyers) or epilating (pulling out) are recommended.

Pusey, an eminent skin specialist, believes there is no danger in epilating. Not long ago he gave a formula for an epilating wax in one of the medical journals which I ran in the column. I received the following letter a short time after:

"After mixing the materials myself and finding that the result was nil, I had the pharmacist fill the forumla for me with the same result. Here is the difficulty: Applied warm, it sticketh not and so no good cometh. Then it is applied so hot that it almost burns. While cooling, it buckles and catches not the hairs. Also no good. Can you suggest a method of using said wax, as an answer to a maiden's prayer. P. S. I have gained four pounds in as many weeks by Petersizing, which is a record for one always so thing.

"MISS R."

On receipt of this letter I wrote to Dr. Pusey. He responded that Miss R.'s trouble might have been that she used the light-colored wax which is not satisfactory. The beeswax must be pure beeswax, which is dark. Sometimes it is necessary to try two or three samples before the right one is obtained. This makes it a little complicated.

I don't know whether there is an epilating wax on the market or not, but if there is it is probably effective and harmless.

This is the formula which Dr. Pusey gives:

Epilating Wax

Pure beeswax (dark), one part (by weight); finely powdered resin, four parts (by weight).

The wax is melted over a low fire and after melting is complete the powdered resin is poured in. The heat is continued and the mass stirred gently until entirely melted; this requires from one to two minutes.

For use it then needs to be molded. One way is to pour it into a deep dish and then crisscross it with deep markings about three-fourths inch apart as though one were making carmels. The plate must be greased (mineral oil best) to prevent the wax from sticking to it. After it is cooled the wax is fairly brittle and the blocks can be broken off for use.

The method of removing hairs with the wax is as follows:

A block is melted by heating over a flame until it becomes soft; this can be done with a temperature that will not burn the skin. When softened, the melted wax is rubbed on the skin in the direction of the hair growth. This is pressed down with the moistened fingers, until one gets a layer about one-eighth inch thick, then is cooled with ice or cold water. After it is cooled, the edge of the wax is picked up with the nail and pulled off with a quick pull in the opposite direction to the growth of the hairs. This is only slightly uncomfortable. If the application has been well made, but few hairs remain on the surface. Those that do remain can be removed with pincers. Now a soothing cream or lotion is applied.

LIVING CHRISTMAS TREE PROMISED FOR COURT HOUSE LAWN

Xenia will have a living Christmag tree, to be placed on the lawn of the Court House, for the residents of the county to enjoy, it was divulged Wednesday.

This plan has long been a project of the Xenia Garden Club and culminated in the appointment by the Kiwanis Club, Tuesday night, of a committee to co-operate with the Garden Club and the making of arrangements to handle the expense of the work.

A. E. Beam, county commissioner, promised the Garden Club that he would donate a handsome fir tree from his farm. The tree will be planted on the west lawn, in the center of the grass plot, where it can be seen from Main and Detroit Sts.

The Dayton Power and Light Co., has agreed to light the tree during the holidays free of charge. The work of planting the tree is expected to be completed in about ten days and when erected and lighted, it is expected the tree will be a worthy sight to see.

The work of planting the tree will be done by the Garden Club gardener and Charles Hook, of the county highway department, who will haul the tree to the city.

The Garden Club is again urging Xenia business men to erect small Christmas trees in front of their place of business, to be lighted and decorated during the holiday season. This idea, which had its inception a few years ago, has made the Xenia business district one of the most attractive during the Yuletide in the country.

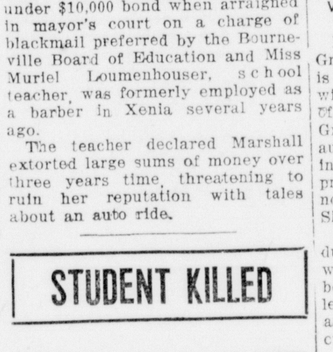

ACCUSED BARBER FORMER XENIAN

Roscoe Marshall, Wilmington barber, who was bound over to the grand jury at Chillicothe Tuesday under $10,000 bond when arraigned in mayor's court on a charge of blackmail preferred by the Bourneville Board of Education and Miss Muriel Loumenhouser, school teacher, was formerly employed as a barber in Xenia several years ago.

The teacher declared Marshall extorted large sums of money over three years time, threatening to ruin her reputation with tales about an auto ride.

STUDENT KILLED

During a hair-cutting episode climaxing the intense rivalry between Howard College and Birmingham Southern College of Birmingham, Ala., Montress Freeman, top, freshman football player of the latter college, was shot and killed. O. H. Westbrook, below, a junior student of Howard College, has been held in connection with the shooting. Howard won the annual football game Saturday 13 to 12.

Two Ways to Avoid Sour Stomach

PAMPERING the stomach as you grow older is one way to keep out of trouble! But it's far more pleasant to eat what you choose, and let Pape's Diapepsin keep the stomach free from excess acid. Plenty of people past "three-score-and-ten" keep stomachs young because they know this one secret.

Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions rely on "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and dietary corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a package at all druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapepsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. You may have felt that nothing can help your particular difficulty, but so have others to whom this remedy proved a pleasant surprise. This experiment with diapepsin may do as much for you.

VOICE FROM THE GRAVE

Judd Gray's Autobiography Is Published; Written In Sing Sing.

Judd Gray and Mrs. Ruth Snyder

By LESLIE P. EICHEL
Written Especially for Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, Nov. 2?.— Judd Gray's "voice from the grave" now is heard. Executed last January 12 with Ruth Snyder for the murder of her husband, Albert Synder, Gray is said to have written his autobiography with pencil and pad in the death house of Sing Sing prison. It comes to the bookstands now under the title of "Doomed Ship."

Critics have rapped it, calling it dull, and hinting Judd Gray didn't write it—but if it's dull, it might be his own efforts. He was a colorless man, reporters said—and here are colorless words (at least some critics say).

The manuscript was given to Gray's sister, Mrs. Margaret Gray Logan, for the business of finding a publisher, the story goes. She chose the title from a passage in an Oscar Wilde verse:

"Like two doomed ships that pass in storm
We had crossed each other's way."

Horace Liveright, publisher, declares the book is a "study in human nature" and gives "artless truth" instead of "lurid melodrama." It may prove too tame for sensation seekers, he infers.

Tells Briefly of Murder

The doomed man tells of his marriage, of the murder (briefly), of the trial. (He wondered "how people could clamor and fight to reach the inside of the courtroom—to listen to the sordid details of the sins of others. All I could think of was the sideshow of a circus.")

The book is full of Biblical quotations. He concludes:

"And at last I am sure of Christ—I will be free, I know. I have bought this all with my own coin—and paid with my body.....It is twenty minutes past ten. When the 11 o'clock train whistles under the prison wall, bodily, I will be no more. The letters my dear ones left with me I will save until the last moment, and their kisses will go with me into the Beyond— I take up my pen and paper and write, 'My own dearest little family,' for the last time.

"Sing Sing Death House, January twelfth, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight."

XENIANS WILL EAT FOWLS THURSDAY

There will be plenty of "white meat" masticated by Xenians Thursday, according to local poultry dealers.

This year was a record-breaker in the sale of fowls for the Thanksgiving dinner, it is said, and turkeys, chickens, geese, and ducks have reached unprecendented sales.

One Xenia poultry house sold 175 turkeys, 600 chickens, forty-one geese, and thirty-two ducks between Tuesday noon and Wednesday noon. Orders were swamping dealers and a large demand was made for every variety of fowl.

Turkeys are cheaper this year than last, it is pointed out, retailing at about forty-five cents a pound. Chickens are selling much cheaper and are the favorite with Xenians for their Thanksgiving meal. Ducks and geese are also lower in price and are popular for the piece de resistance.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

MOTHER PROTESTS FREEING OF BURGLAR

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 28—Mrs Mary Livermore, mother-in-law of Mrs. Ruth Livermore, girl burglar now serving a life sentence in the Marysville reformatory for women, appealed today to Judge George H. Gessner and Attorney Nathan Kaufman to stop the court action started by a Cleveland newspaper to free her daughter-in-law.

"My son and daughterin-law are better off in prison now, for they are learning their lessons, and I am sure they don't want this agitation for a new trial started now," she said.

Mrs. Livermore, described by Judge Gessner and Kaufman as, "a good Christian woman, who wants what is right done by her son and daughter-in-law," was told by the judge and attorney that there is nothing they can do to stop the hearing Dec. 3 before Judge J. H. C. Lyon on the motion for a new trial for the girl burglar.

SCHOOL GYMNASIUM DAMAGED BY BLAZE

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 27.—Fire damaged the new $250,000 gymnasium of Kentucky University yesterday while the Kentucky Wildcats were preparing to entrain for Knoxville where they meet Tennessee Thanksgiving Day.

The blaze was confined to the basketball cour. Had the fire been discovered fifteen minutes later all the university's gridiron equipment valued at $15,000, would have been destroyed. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

RETURNS AFTER BIG GAME HUNTING TRIP

Dr. George Davis, E. Main St., returned home Tuesday night from his annual hunting trip to Canada. He has been spending eight weeks at his camp on Spruce Lake, in northern Ontario, in company with an Indian guide, Isadore Pauquette.

They killed both moose and deer and Dr. Davis returned with a moose with an antler spread of fifty-five inches. Dr. Davis and his guide saved the life of another hunter, lost in the woods, who was found almost frozen, after attracting the hunters by firing his gun.

NEURITIS PAINS YIELD TO POWER OF NEW KONJOLA

Xenia Resident Says This Medicine Was A Life Saver; Also Relieved Him Of Stomach Trouble

A promise of abundant health and new life energy for hundreds of Xenia people and deliverance from common ailments was made by the Konjola Man when he came to this city a few months ago from unusual successes in Cincinnati,

MR. JOHN SHEARS

Canby's Art Gallery,
E. Main St.

Columbus and other large cities. His headquarters in the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, is the scene of large crowds calling throughout the day to find out for themselves about this surprising new medicine. At the same time, report after report is being received from men and women who have already been relieved of various disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels by this compound.

Mr. John Shears, 434 E. Third St., this city, was the latest to make a public statement about the work of Konjola. Mr. Shears also offered his photograph for publication.

"Konjola has really been a life saver to me," said Mr. Shears, "and since it accomplished such wonderful things in my case I believe others should know about it and that is why I am making this statement.

"For more than six years I suffered so severely from neuritis that I was unable to get around without someone to aid me. The pains seemed to center in all parts of my body, coming when I least expected them and feeling just like an electric shock. The joints of my hips and limbs were affected most of all and sometime they became so stiff it seemed a certainty that they would break. My stomach got into a disordered condition and brought on such bad symptoms after each meal that I lost the desire for food. I felt tired and worn-out all the time. Constipation made this feeling more aggravated and to add to my miseries I was subject to splitting headaches that felt as if a thousand needles were sticking in my head. I doctored and tried medicine after medicine, spending hundreds of dollars but was unable to find anything that gave me more than temporary relief.

"Each day I read about someone being restored to health through the use of Konjola and I made further inquiries about this medicine. I found it to be a splendid remedy for such troubles as I was suffering and best of all that it does all that is claimed for it. I did not hesitate any longer but started on the treatment. That was the luckiest day of my life because right from the start I began to notice an improvement in my health. The neuritis pains began to ease up and as I continued with the treatment they completely disappeared. Now I can get around and do whatever I want without anyone to help me. I feel sure the relief is permanent because it has been some time since I completed the Konjola course and not a single pain has ever bothered me. My stomach is functioning perfectly and those headaches are gone. I have a great deal more energy and vigor and feel just like a different person. That is what Konjola does for all in poor health."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is meeting the public every day, introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine. Adv.

FATE BLAMED FOR DISASTER

Lifeboats Leaked, Unknown Sailor Reveals; Orders Mixed Up

By LESLIE P. EICHEL
Written Especially for Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Many men have had their say regarding the sinking of the British steamer Vestris, bound from New York to South America. Experts, members of the crew, congressmen, editorial writers, officials of all sorts.

Except the Vestris' crew, the sailor of the waterfront, the man who has sailed all seas, has been grimly silent.

But there is one fellow, a Britisher himself, who voices his opinion, dropping all his 'h's' and with a cockney accept as thick as a bowl of soup.

He gives his name, but not for publication. He may desire to ship again with the Lamport and Holt line, owner of the fatal craft.

Worked on Vestris

He was boatswain on the Vestris last year, quitting her last January. Friends of his were part of her crew this tragic voyage, and have told him "secret things they dare tell no one else."

"Of the Old Man (captain) who seemed as if he wanted the crew to go to death, and officers that didn't know their business," he relates.

How does he know the men are right?

"They tell me things they'd never tell. . . ." he repeats.

"'Shake hands with death,' they said to me, 'it was fate, not captain nor officer nor man that saved us.'

"Certain, if a man's born to be drowned, he won't get hung. And it may be the other way 'round.

Boatswain Sees Fate

"What's to come will come. But sometime you can see it coming.

"Down in Santos (Brazil) we had a race in the Vestris' lifeboats for a five-pound prize. That was last year.

"But race it was not. Those life-boats leaked . . the water flowed in.

"Boat drills on shipboard? Yes, we had them. But what good is a drill, marching to a boat, when you don't lower the boat into the water to see whether she'll float?

"And in each boat is supposed to be a tin of biscuits (crackers) and fresh water. Twice a trip there should be inspection, tasting of the biscuits, of the water. I never saw that. . . .

"Maybe when the great crisis came, the Old Man didn't know. Men sail the sea all their lives—and then meet a crisis only not to know. But he's dead. . . .

"No order. Everybody for himself, my friends say. A lifeboat of women and children let down from the davits one end first, spilling them all into the sea—for the sharks. Sharp knives, that's what were needed, sharp knives to cut davit ropes at both ends of lifeboats at once, so one end wouldn't go down first. Nobody had one. Nobody giving the right kind of orders, my friends say. No officers giving orders with guns. Men need guns pointed at them such times.

"Such is what the men tell me. . speaking where nobody will hear.

"But it's not that way on all British boats. Maybe one. . . . or two. . . in a crisis I've been aboard many.

"I'm 48. I was 15 when I went into the royal navy at 24 cents a month.

"Up at five in the morning. Climbed the masts. The last one down belayed with a rope's end.

"Then a small square of pork and cocoa for breakfast.

"Times are better now. Quarters on the big boats of the Cunard, White Star, Panama-Pacific lines are like palaces to what a sailor's quarters used to be. Worse than jail, they were.

"And on the Great Lakes a sailor sits down to dinner with the Old Man. There's where the sailor has it best of all—on the Great Lakes. . . .

"This disaster stop me? Lad, when once you've heard the call of the sea. . . .Anyway, if a man's born to be drowned he won't get hung."

FACING CHARGES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28.—Harry V. Taylor who told Newark, O., police he was wanted in Philadelphia for twenty-six holdups, in Columbus for murder and New York state for robbery, was returned here today to face non-support charges. Newark police had been holding Taylor for mental observation.

Lucky "Black Chile"

Because John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, took a fancy to "Black Chile," Mississippi lad who caddied for him during his post-election vacation with Governor Alfred E. Smith, that young man, whose real name is Frank Ivory, accompanies Raskob to New York in a new suit of clothes and money in his pocket. Raskob intends to educate Frank.

Fifth Ave. Sets New Hair Vogue

"On the El and in the Subway, everywhere I go nowadays, I see girls here in New York who are doing their hair the new way," says pretty Leona Newell, 6250 Anna Place, Glendale, L. I., now appearing on Broadway in the "Greenwich Village Follies." "I can tell girls who are using it, by the way their hair seems to sparkle. It looks so soft, too, and it's always neat. This way just suits me. I haven't much time to give my hair, and it takes just a second to put a few dashes of Danderine on your brush when you use it. It certainly makes your hair look grand. Mine needs shampooing only once a month, too, since I'm using Danderine."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair and restores its natural sheen and lustre. It keeps bobbed hair in place without showing. It stops dandruff. Drug stores everywhere sell millions of the 35c bottles. A fragrant toilet necessity for the well-groomed girl. —Adv.

TYPICAL THANKSGIVING MENUS AT XENIA INSTITUTIONS ON THURSDAY

Typical Thanksgiving menus will be on the festal boards at the state and county institutions in Xenia, Thursday.

Inmates of the various institutions annually anticipate the delicious viands set before them on Thanksgiving, and this year will be no exception in the way of tempting food.

Fifteen hundred pounds of turkey were being prepared for the oven at the O. S. and S. O. Home, Wednesday. To this piece de resistance will be added all the "accessories" of dressing, giblet gravy, mashed potatoes, squash, celery, cranberry sauce, ice cream, lemon cake and milk.

The dinner will be the chief feature at the Home for the day, and in the afternoon, Col. C. V. Burton, superintendent will accompany a body of pupils to the Xenia-Springfield football game. The children will be given an entire holiday, officials announce.

The delectable odors of roast chicken will be in the air at the County Children's Home, Thanksgiving. This will be served with mashed and sweet potatoes, dressing, salad, and dessert. The children will be given a holiday from study and left to their own amusement.

Roast pork, another Thanksgiving menu favorite will be served at the County Infirmary. Each plate will be filled with pork, oyster dressing, cranberry sauce, slaw, mashed and sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie, bread and butter besides coffee.

There will be no special Thanksgiving dinner at the County Jail. The custom was abandoned by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and the county commissioners.

GRAND JURY MAY CONSIDER ONLY ONE CASE; SLAIN YOUTH BURIED

Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall declared Wednesday that it is extremely unlikely any other cases except that of the fatal shooting of Caleb Hitchcock, 23, by Gilbert Cooper, 49, following an argument over some traps last Saturday will be investigated by the October grand jury when that body reconvenes in special session in Common Pleas Court next Monday morning.

Ten cases involving eight persons are listed on the criminal docket for grand jury consideration. Prosecutor Marshall said he intends to investigate whether any of those awaiting grand jury action are confined in the County Jail. The cases of those that are out on bond will probably be held over until the next regular session of the grand jury for the January court term, he said.

These cases are listed on the criminal docket: Leo Killeen, charged with theft; Greene L. Femuels and L. O. Clemmer, both accused of issuing checks without funds; Fred Porter, assault; Robert Johnson and Harry Duncan, burglary and larceny; Revell Hurley and James Hurley, two charges each of petit larceny.

While Cooper was in jail preparing a self-defense plea to the probable murder charge, funeral services for the slain youth were conducted at the home of his parents near Cedarville Tuesday afternoon.

Services for Hitchcock were in charge of the Rev. R. A. Jamieson, pastor of the Cedarville United Presbyterian Church. Interment was made in the South Charleston Cemetery.

Pending the finding of the grand jury Monday, Prosecutor Marshall, under an agreement with Attorney F. L. Johnson, defense counsel, did not file an affidavit against the slayer Tuesday.

Pleading he fired at Hitchcock only in self-defense, Cooper is expected to attempt to prove that he was first attacked by the youth with a club, which he alleges the boy carried, although the elder Hitchcock, a witness to the shooting, denies this.

Cooper, reiterating that Hitchcock was the aggressor in their quarrel, continues to maintain an outward calm over the affair. He does not appear remorseful, authorities say, and exhibits little or no concern over preparations being made to speed up disposition of his case.

TURKEY DINNER NOT SO CHEAP IS FOUND

The average Thanksgiving dinner, serving an average family of six, will reach an average cost of nine dollars, it is estimated.

With turkey selling at about seventy cents a pound, a seven-pound fowl is needed for a family of six. Potatoes, both sweet and of the Irish variety can be purchased to feed such a family for twenty-five cents.

The oyster dressing, considering the bread, or crackers, and seasoning will cost about fifty cents. Vegetables can be obtained for twenty-five cents; a quart of cranberries for twenty-five cents; and celery for a quarter.

In the way of pastries, if you have pie it would cost about fifty cents to serve this number with cake slightly more expensive. A quart of ice cream serves six persons, at seventy-five cents a quart. Bread and butter with preserves comes to about fifty cents and coffee at the same price. Making a grand total of $8.65.

TUNA FISH

GIVES YOU DELICATE, DELICIOUS FLAVOR

As tender and delicate as the white meat of chicken and absolutely free from any strong "fishy" flavor or odor, "E" BRAND TUNA FISH offers you one of the most tempting and tasty fish ever put on the market. It is a deep sea fish found off the coast of southern California and the dainty, fine-textured meat has about it the sweet freshness of the shining salt water. Whether you are a fish lover or not try a can of this—you will be sure to like it. It tastes as good as chicken—but costs far less—and is rich in nourishment.

TRY THIS RECIPE
BY AN EXPERT LOCAL COOK

Cream one can of "E" BRAND SELECTED PINK SALMON. Brown one package of Chow Mein noodles to a crisp brown in oven. Prepare nest of crisp lettuce in deep dish. Pour in browned noodles, then pour on the hot creamed tuna fish. Chop hard boiled egg over top of fish and sprinkle with paprika. Serve hot.

CHOICEST SALMON FROM THE WORLD'S FINEST CANNERIES

"E" BRAND PINK SALMON

This is the salmon the native Alaskan will always choose for his own use because he knows that while other salmon may be deeper in color and fancy packed, no other is finer in flavor or more delicate in texture. It is Alaska's great food favorite and will be a favorite food in your home once it has been served. The ideal salmon for all general purpose uses!

"For more than six years I suffered so severely from neuritis that I was unable to get around without someone to aid me. The pains seemed to center in all parts of my body, coming when I least expected them and feeling just like an electric shock. The joints of my hips and limbs were affected most of all and sometime they became so stiff it seemed a certainty that they would break. My stomach got into a disordered condition and brought on such bad symptoms after each meal that I lost the desire for food. I felt tired and worn-out all the time. Constipation made this feeling more aggravated and to add to my miseries I was subject to splitting headaches that felt as if a thousand needles were sticking in my head. I doctored and tried medicine after medicine, spending hundreds of dollars, but was unable to find anything that gave me more than temporary relief.

"Each day I read about someone being restored to health through the use of Konjola and I made further inquiries about this medicine. I found it to be a splendid remedy for such troubles as I was suffering and best of all that it does all that is claimed for it. I did not hesitate any longer but started on the treatment. That was the luckiest day of my life because right from the start I began to notice an improvement in my health. The neuritis pains began to ease up and as I continued with the treatment they completely disappeared. Now I can get around and do whatever I want without anyone to help me. I feel sure the relief is permanent because it has been some time since I completed the Konjola course and not a single pain has ever bothered me. My stomach is functioning perfectly and those headaches are gone. I have a great deal more energy and vigor and feel just like a different person. That is what Konjola does for all in poor health."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is meeting the public every day, introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine. Adv.

FATE BLAMED FOR DISASTER

Lifeboats Leaked, Unknown Sailor Reveals; Orders Mixed Up

By LESLIE P. EICHEL
Written Especially for Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Many men have had their say regarding the sinking of the British steamer Vestris, bound from New York to South America. Experts, members of the crew, congressmen, editorial writers, officials of all sorts.

Except the Vestris' crew, the sailor of the waterfront, the man who has sailed all seas, has been grimly silent.

But there is one fellow, a Britisher himself, who voices his opinion, dropping all his 'h's' and with a cockney accent as thick as a bowl of soup.

He gives his name, but not for publication. He may desire to ship again with the Lamport and Hoit line, owner of the fatal craft.

Worked on Vestris

He was boatswain on the Vestris last year, quitting her last January. Friends of his were part of her crew this tragic voyage, and have told him "secret things they dare tell no one else."

"Of the Old Man (captain) who seemed as if he wanted the crew to go to death, and officers that 'don't know their business,'," he relates.

How does he know the men are right?

"They tell me things they'd never tell. . . ." he repeats.

"'Shake hands with death,' they said to me, 'it was fate, not captain nor officer nor man that saved us.'

"Certain, if a man's born to be drowned, he won't get hung. And it may be the other way 'round.

Boatswain Sees Fate

"What's to come will come. But sometime you can see it coming.

"Down in Santos (Brazil) we had a race in the Vestris' lifeboats for a five-pound prize. That was last year.

"But race it was not. Those life-boats leaked . . the water flowed in.

"Boat drills on shipboard? Yes, we had them. But what good is a drill, marching to a boat, when you don't lower the boat into the water to see whether she'll float?

"And in each boat is supposed to be a tin of biscuits (crackers) and fresh water. Twice a trip there should be inspection, tasting of the biscuits, of the water. I never saw that. . . .

"Maybe when the great crisis came, the Old Man didn't know. Men sail the sea all their lives—and then meet a crisis only not to know. But he's dead. . . .

"No order. Everybody for himself, my friends say. A lifeboat of women and children let down from the davits one end first, spilling them all into the sea—for the sharks. Sharp knives, that's what were needed, sharp knives to cut davit ropes at both ends of lifeboats at once, so one end wouldn't go down first. Nobody had one. Nobody giving the right kind of orders, my friends say. No officers giving orders with guns. Men need guns pointed at them such times.

"Such is what the men tell me. . . speaking where nobody will hear.

"But it's not that way on all British boats. Maybe one. . . . or two. . . in a crisis I've been aboard many.

"I'm 48. I was 15 when I went into the royal navy at 24 cents a month.

"Up at five in the morning. Climbed the masts. The last one down belayed with a rope's end.

"Then a small square of pork and cocoa for breakfast.

"Times are better now. Quarters on the big boats of the Cunard, White Star, Panama-Pacific lines are like palaces to what a sailor's quarters used to be. Worse than jail, they were.

"And on the Great Lakes a sailor sits down to dinner with the Old Man. There's where the sailor has it best of all—on the Great Lakes. . . .

"This disaster stop me? Lad, when once you've heard the call of the sea. . . .Anyway, if a man's born to be drowned he won't get hung."

FACING CHARGES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28.—Harry V. Taylor who told Newark, O., police he was wanted in Philadelphia for twenty-six holdups, in Columbus for murder and New York state for robbery, was returned here today to face non-support charges. Newark police had been holding Taylor for mental observation.

Lucky "Black Chile"

Because John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, took a fancy to "Black Chile," Mississippi lad who caddied for him during his post-election vacation with Governor Alfred E. Smith, that young man, whose real name is Frank Ivory, accompanies Raskob to New York in a new suit of clothes and money in his pocket. Raskob intends to educate Frank.

Fifth Ave. Sets New Hair Vogue

"On the El and in the Subway, everywhere I go nowadays, I see girls here in New York who are doing their hair the new way," says pretty Leona Newell, 6250 Anna Place, Glendale, L. I., now appearing on Broadway in the "Greenwich Village Follies." "I can tell girls who are using it, by the way their hair seems to sparkle. It looks so soft, too, and it's always neat. This way just suits me. I haven't much time to give my hair, and it takes just a second to put a few dashes of Danderine on your brush when you use it. It certainly makes your hair look grand. Mine needs shampooing only once a month, too, since I'm using Danderine."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair and restores its natural sheen and lustre. It keeps bobbed hair in place without showing. It stops dandruff. Drug stores everywhere sell millions of the 35c bottles. A fragrant toilet necessity for the well-groomed girl. —Adv.

TUNA FISH

GIVES YOU DELICATE, DELICIOUS FLAVOR

As tender and delicate as the white meat of chicken and absolutely free from any strong "fishy" flavor or odor, "E" BRAND TUNA FISH offers you one of the most tempting and tasty fish ever put on the market. It is a deep sea fish found off the coast of southern California and the dainty, fine-textured meat has about it the sweet freshness of the shining salt water. Whether you are a fish lover or not try a can of this—you will be sure to like it. It tastes as good as chicken—but costs far less—and is rich in nourishment.

TRY THIS RECIPE
BY AN EXPERT LOCAL COOK

Cream one can of "E" BRAND SELECTED PINK SALMON. Brown one package of Chow Mein noodles to a crisp brown in oven. Prepare nest of crisp lettuce in deep dish. Pour in browned noodles, then pour on the hot creamed tuna fish. Chop hard boiled egg over top of fish and sprinkle with paprika. Serve hot.

CHOICEST SALMON FROM THE WORLD'S FINEST CANNERIES

"E" BRAND PINK SALMON

This is the salmon the native Alaskan will always choose for his own use because he knows that while other salmon may be deeper in color and fancy packed, no other is finer in flavor or more delicate in texture. It is Alaska's great food favorite and will be a favorite food in your home once it has been served. The ideal salmon for all general purpose uses!

FOUR TESTIFY IN STOCK FRAUD CASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Four men who lost through investment in the Idaho Copper Corporation appeared as witnesses yesterday against three others charged with using the mails to defraud in selling stock in the company.

The accused men are George Graham Rice, stock broker; Walter K. Yorston, of Boise, Idaho, president of the Idaho Copper Corporation; and Walter Harvey Weed, a geologist.

The witnesses testified they bought several shares of stock in the company after reading accounts of the stock in the "Wall St. Iconoclast" a stock paper published by Rice. They said they were persuaded by the accounts that the stock was a good investment.

HIGH POTATO YIELD

An excellent chance at the Ohio record potato yield for 1928 is before the Toledo State Hospital, which has reported the highest yield yet checked among some twenty aspirants for the Ohio 400-Bushel Potato Club. On the hospital gardens at Toledo an acre yield of 520 bushels and 32 pounds has been produced. O. O. Fordyce is superintendent of the hospital and Joe Dultmeyer is gardener.

Recommendations of E. B. Tussing, vegetable gardening specialist, and other members of the extension service of the Ohio State University, have been followed throughout the year in making the record yield. John Bragg, in charge of the farms of all state welfare institutions, was himself formerly an extension agent in Pickway County.

Production of potatoes at the state hospital is greater than the consumption, and surplus potatoes are supplied to other state institutions from the 40-acre plot.

"Nothing in our recommendations for the Toledo hospital farm was out of line or impracticable in general good potato raising practice," said Tussing, in commenting upon the heavy yield.

Heavy spraying was one of the things which aided in the yield.

Her Color Went Black. She Was Frightened To Death

Mrs. Waite, New Brighton, writes: "That deadly indigestion and gastritis, caused by constipation made my color go black. I was frightened to death, and I feel your laxative saved my life. I take them every night now for precaution, and do not fear an attack of constipation poisoning any more."

ODD FELLOWS HOSTS AT FATHER AND SON BANQUET PROGRAM

Xenia Odd Fellows entertained Tuesday evening with a father and son program and banquet. Each member brought his own son or some other young man as his guest of the evening, and after the regular business, gathered for a good time.

H. H. Slagle was chairman of the program and introduced Mayor John W. Prugh, who gave an interesting talk on the possibilities of development today, especially for the young people present. He also stressed the necessary co-operation between father and son. "Make a chum out of your boy. Keep his confidence. He will be glad to go more than half way with you," he said. Mr. Prugh closed with a "boost" for Xenia and the Community Chest.

Chairman Slagle then introduced the Rev. Wm. H. Tilford, who gave an interesting talk illustrated with crayon drawings, combining fun with seriousness in his lessons.

Mr. Warwick, chairman of the menu committee, then invited all present to a banquet in the social hall, which was enjoyed by the nearly one hundred fathers and sons present.

According to those in charge this is the first of a number of special affairs to be held by the Odd Fellows this winter.

EAGLES TO SPONSOR OLD AGE PENSION

Definite plans for introducing a new old age pension bill for Ohio at the next session of the state legislature in January will be made at a meeting of the Old Age Pension Committee of the Ohio Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, to be held on December 8, according to word received Saturday by Secretary Edwin A. Jeffries of Xenia Aerie No. 1689, of Xenia, from State Secretary M. L. Brown, Springfield.

Members of the State Old Age Pension committee are: James J. Hoban, Cleveland, chairman; Kinnis Fritter, Columbus; Judge M. L. Sweeney, Cleveland; C. F. Eise, Galion; and E. L. Hayes, Wilmington. This committee works in co-operation with the Old Age Pension committee of the local aerie, composed of Edgar Carder, chairman; Will Bath, Frank Weiss, Clarence Whiting, C. L. Behr.

ODD FELLOWS HOSTS AT FATHER AND SON BANQUET PROGRAM

Xenia Odd Fellows entertained Tuesday evening with a father and son program and banquet. Each member brought his own son or some other young man as his guest of the evening, and after the regular business, gathered for a good time.

H. H. Slagle was chairman of the program and introduced Mayor John W. Prugh, who gave an interesting talk on the possibilities of development today, especially for the young people present. He also stressed the necessary co-operation between father and son. "Make a chum out of your boy. Keep his confidence. He will be glad to go more than half way with you," he said. Mr. Prugh closed with a "boost" for Xenia and the Community Chest.

Chairman Slagle then introduced the Rev. Wm. H. Tilford, who gave an interesting talk illustrated with crayon drawings, combining fun with seriousness in his lessons.

Mr. Warwick, chairman of the menu committee, then invited all present to a banquet in the social hall, which was enjoyed by the nearly one hundred fathers and sons present.

According to those in charge this is the first of a number of special affairs to be held by the Odd Fellows this winter.

EAGLES TO SPONSOR OLD AGE PENSION

Definite plans for introducing a new old age pension bill for Ohio at the next session of the state legislature in January will be made at a meeting of the Old Age Pension Committee of the Ohio Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, to be held on December 8, according to word received Saturday by Secretary Edwin A. Jeffries of Xenia Aerie No. 1689, of Xenia, from State Secretary M. L. Brown, Springfield.

Members of the State Old Age Pension committee are: James J. Hoban, Cleveland, chairman; Kinnis Fritter, Columbus; Judge M. L. Sweeney, Cleveland; C. F. Eise, Galion; and E. L. Hayes, Wilmington. This committee works in co-operation with the Old Age Pension committee of the local aerie, composed of Edgar Carder, chairman; Will Bath, Frank Weiss, Clarence Whiting, C. L. Behr.

CALLS NEWSPAPER BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM AVAILABLE

The newspaper was described as "the most effective medium of advertising" by Jack Lutz, vice president of the Poor Richard Club, Philadelphia, who addressed a Germantown Business Men's Association recently.

During his talk he enumerated ten purposes which he said can be realized through newspaper advertising.

They were, in the opinion of Mr. Lutz, in the order of their importance, "to sell merchandise, to secure quick turnover, to inform the public where to buy an article, to educate the public to the use of such articles, to draw new customers into your store, to act as the first step to a sale, to create and maintain enthusiasm among your sales force, to create and maintain good will, to raise the standard of living and 'to sell' your store as a good place to buy."

"In my judgment," he continued, "every merchant owes it to his business, his community, his employes, as well as to himself, to advertise. The question is, 'where shall I advertise?' and my answer is, 'In the newspapers.'

"There is no advertising medium known that will reach as great a number of possible buyers, that will reach them at a lower cost, that will inspire in them greater confidence in what they read, than the newspaper. Not only do figures prove this, but the constant use of the newspaper and its growing use as an advertising medium by those who figure costs and returns prove it.

"Moreover, no other medium can take advantage of local conditions and give local color to the advertising like the newspaper. Of course you have competition; you have competition in everything. Competition is overcome in advertising as it is in your store—by arrangement, appeal, attractiveness, price, quality and other features.

"The prime object of retail advertising is or should be to get people to come into your store. The question of 'selling' them after they get into the store is up to your sales force, to the arrangement of your store, to the attractive display of goods, to the ease with which goods may be seen and examined, to the courtesy extended and to accommodation in the matter of payment.

"Direct mail supports other forms of advertising; it supports sales efforts and it can be made to function very effectively if it is consistently used according to a definite plan.

"But let me leave this thought with you. There is no better medium for the retail store than the newspaper. It is read going to and coming from business; it is read at home. It is believed, because in most cases it is truthful.

WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS AFTER POURING KEROSENE IN STOVE

Mrs. Artie Potts, 30, mother of three children, died at McClellan Hospital at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon four and one-half hours after she poured kerosene on smouldering coals in a cook stove at her home in Octa, Fayette County, at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday.

The explosion scattered burning oil over the room, saturated her clothing and enveloped her in flames. She ran screaming from the house. Neighbors went to her aid and smothered the flames with blankets. She was then rushed to the Xenia hospital, where attendants said her body was practically covered with second degree burns.

The house and contents were burned to the ground. Three young children escaped injury. The body was removed to Octa Tuesday evening.

BUCCANEERS YEARN FOR VICTORY IN SWAN SONG AGAINST ANCIENT FOE

Coach Wilson's Pets Primed To Wind Up Season With Turkey Day Win; Ten Seniors Will Perform Last Time for Blue and White

Probable lineups for the Xenia-Springfield Thanksgiving Day football game which starts at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field:

XENIA		SPRINGFIELD
Gibney	l. e.	Cox
Scott	l. t.	Gosling
Beals	l. g.	Watters
Smittle	c.	Mitchell
Weaver	r. g.	Teach (c)
Jones	r. t.	Voller
McCallister	r. e.	Metcalf
Adair	q. b.	Wilson
Scurry	l. h.	Holderby
Bell	r. h.	Vogelsberg
Buell	f. b.	Wichael

Referee—David Reese, Denison.
Umpire—Cox, Ohio State.
Head linesman—John Moore, Muskingum.

By PHIL FRAME

THE magnet of tradition is expected to draw the greatest crowd of the season to Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday afternoon, when Xenia Central High Buccaneers and Springfield High clash in their annual Thanksgiving Day football tilt.

Here is a contest in which Springfield will enter as the underdogs since it has succeeded in taming only Cedarville High in its entire list of opponents this season.

The Buccaneers, with a successful season already earned, are polishing up their offense this week to meet the stiff defense expected to be put up by the Reaper City eleven.

Xenia looks upon Springfield as its strongest traditional rival and the student body and football warriors in particular would rather win the Springfield game than any other on the schedule.

Fair weather and a dry field are what Coach "Pinky" Wilson and his charges are hoping for the game. Springfield and the Buccaneers have battled in the rain and mud for many years. Both teams are expected to go in for an air game.

Buoyed up by a strong hope for victory over Springfield for the first time since 1922, the Buccaneers are optimistic of victory but are not taking their opponents lightly.

A little more sandpaper on the rough edges this week and the Buccaneers will be ready for the actual conflict, which will close the 1928 season for both schools.

It is rather widely known that both teams set more store in victory in their coming clash than they have on all the rest of the games they've played so far this year.

In Springfield-land, Coach Russell Hull's much-kicked-about team is licking the wound of a 53 to 0 defeat administered by Middletown last Saturday and is hopefully awaiting a possible victory.

It is hardly probable that the personnel of Xenia's starting eleven, which has been practically the same in recent weeks, will be changed. Birch Bell, flashy sophomore half, who sustained an injury to his right hand in the Sidney game and did not play against Wilmington, will be back at his old position fully recovered and eager to do his share toward defeating the invaders.

Xenia's make-shift backfield in the Wilmington contest clicked together with the forward wall in excellent regularity. A sharp hitting, driving attack spiced with a deceptive forward passing threat, may be the goal of attainment that will be sought by the Buccaneers for the Springfield struggle.

Xenia's attack this season has been slow in getting over the final chalk mark and any delays that are met on the way are likely to prove fatal. However, Central showed a rather quick-scoring offense against Wilmington and may repeat against Springfield.

Springfield will come to Xenia with nothing and Xenia hopes to send it back with nothing. Springfield probably still feels the effects of the pummeling it received from the burly Middletown eleven Saturday and may be in poor physical shape for the game.

Xenia fans will see ten senior members of the squad in action for the last time. By the way, Xenia has not been defeated in a home game this season, although tied once here, and will strive to the utmost to keep this record unblemished.

Central Has Beaten Springfield Twice

Now is the time for the Xenia Central High Buccaneers to end their season successfully with a victory over their dearest rival, Springfield High, on Turkey Day this week.

The drudgery of the schedule is past. The supremacy of the Miami Valley High School League has virtually been decided, with Xenia no longer concerned as to what team shall receive the spoils.

Just ahead, however, is a game which will settle an ancient enmity which is always rehashed at this time of the year.

The Thanksgiving Day tilt portends great things. Xenia and Springfield will indulge in an annual private quarrel from which the Buccaneers hope to emerge victorious for the first time since 1922—six years ago. Last season Xenia came close to victory but the game ended in a 6 to 6 tie.

Now the Blue and White eleven has a chance—a better chance than usual—to close its books with a record of having performed a feat which has been accomplished by Xenia teams only twice since 1911, to wit: beat Springfield.

Xenia and Springfield football rivalry probably extends far back of 1911 but the records disclose that since that year Springfield has been returned the victor eleven times and Xenia twice while one game was tied in fourteen contests played.

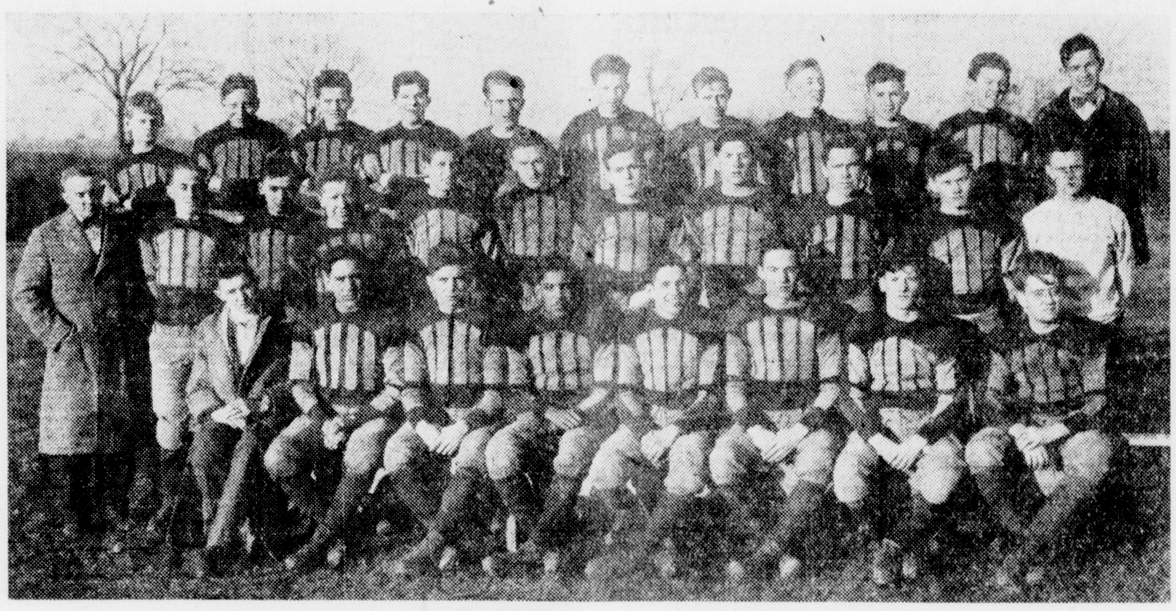

Over this same period, Springfield teams have rolled up an impressive total of 423 points against eighty-three for Xenia elevens.

Xenia's two victories came on successive years in 1921 and 1922 by scores of 34 to 0 and 20 to 0, respectively. Jerry Katherman's team did the trick for the first time in 1921 and was undefeated and scored upon but once that year. "Puss" Burgner was at the helm the following year and having inherited a number of veterans from the "miracle" team of the preceding season, also turned out a corking good team, which lost but one game. After that Xenia drew a blank insofar as victories over Springfield were concerned.

Xenia and Springfield have met annually on the gridiron since 1911 with breaks only in 1913, 1917 and 1925. Records of the Turkey Day opponents since 1911 follow:

1911—Xenia 0, Springfield 29.
1912—Xenia 0, Springfield 95.
1913—No game.
1914—Xenia 10, Springfield 15.
1915—Xenia 0, Springfield 47.
1916—Xenia 0, Springfield 36.
1917—No game.
1918—Xenia 7, Springfield 48.
1919—Xenia 0, Springfield 39.
1920—Xenia 0, Springfield 41.
1921—Xenia 34, Springfield 0.
1922—Xenia 20, Springfield 0.
1923—Xenia 0, Springfield 33.
1924—Xenia 6, Springfield 27.
1925—No game.
1926—Xenia 0, Springfield 7.
1927—Xenia 6, Springfield 6.

WILSON MAKES GOOD IN FIRST COACHING SEASON AT CENTRAL

Mentor Proved Star At Muskingum; Boys Like Him

COACH WILSON

When Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson of the Central High Buccaneers was casting about for a college to attend after leaving high school, he didn't have far to look.

For Wilson's home is in New Concord, O., and that's where Muskingum College performs its task of furnishing higher education to aspiring young men and women.

Wilson then took up the dual burden of being both college student and "town boy" and proved himself a regular. Although, he would look tiny along side of big Lassman, the crack New York University tackle, Wilson didn't let a little matter of physiography keep him from higher education on the football field.

Bill Lange, who sparkled for King Godfrey on probably the best teams ever developed by that mentor at Wittenberg College, Springfield, was in charge of athletics at Muskingum. He gave the little fellow a chance and the red-head went over with a bang. Among a lot of these Ohio Conference bruisers Wilson could hardly be seen on the football field but he proved there is a lot to the game besides brawn and was an important cog in the machine that led the conference last year.

Wilson is doing his first job of coaching at Central this year, coming here to succeed Vic Kolb. Even the alumni believe he is doing a good job, and they are usually hard to satisfy. Wilson took charge after the squad had lost a lot of veterans through the inevitable medium of gradution but his team has turned in a successful season so far and he yearns to make it more successful by defeating Springfield Thurday.

They say that Wilson is never satisfied with his team, that he's hard to get along with after a defeat and not inclined to praise after a victory. Between halves they say his lectures cause the grass on the gridiron to curl up and die. But you would never know it to meet him and the youngsters playing under him pay him the highest compliment of all. They are for him to a man. And that's what counts.

TEN CENTRAL SENIORS TO PLAY FINAL GAME THANKSGIVING DAY

Backfield And Line Equally Hit By Graduation Next June; Bell Only Surviving Regular In Xenia Offense.

Ten senior members of Xenia Central High School's football squad will sing their swan song as far as their high school athletic careers are concerned in the Thanksgiving Day tilt with Springfield Thursday.

When the roll is called next season many players that have been the foundation of the 1928 grid squad won't be there.

These players are Dick Snyder, end; Robert Buell, halfback; Robert Adair, quarterback; John Gibney, end; Ralph Scurry, fullback; Herman Scott, tackle; James Beals, guard; Don Cook, guard; Paul Weaver, guard, and William Jones, tackle.

Xenia's squad this year was made up of ten seniors, thirteen juniors, eleven sophomores and two freshmen.

The backfield and line will be hurt equally as much it appears. Birch Bell, who will be a junior, will be the only backfield mainstay who will return. Graduation of Scott, Gibney and several others will weaken the line.

However, there will be many boys back with considerable experience in actual competition, including Bell, Smittle, McCallister, Spahr, Michael, Hurley, Mowen and others.

NOT SO BAD!

The 1928 Xenia Central High Buccaneers may not have rolled up points as frequently this season as local teams of past years but neither have they been scored upon nearly so often.

Nine games played so far this season have produced sixty-five points for Xenia against only thirty-three for the opposition, indicating a good defensive record.

As far as the season is concerned, it has been successful. To date Xenia has won four games, lost two and tied three with Springfield to be played Thursday.

The season has produced victories over the O. S. and S. O. Home, Miamisburg, Troy and Wilmington. Washington C. H. and Sidney have been the only teams to defeat Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson's lads. Xenia was held to tie scores by Cincinnati Withrow, Piqua and Greenville but if moral victories are to be awarded, the Buccaneers were clearly best in these encounters. In these games Xenia had its moments more often than the opposition but scoring punch was lacking.

ALLIANCE, Nov. 28.— Mount Union may be sorely crippled when she takes the field tomorrow against the Wittenberg Lutherans in the Turkey Day battle. The varsity worked out with the frosh yesterday but didn't show up favorably. The Lutherans are in fair condition although their game with Ohio Wesleyan last Saturday left them rather weary.

NEW YORK WORRIES OVER COMING GAME WITH OREGON TEAM

Purple Will Miss Giant Tackle In Holiday Game

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Football aspirations have been blasted so many times during the current season that New York University, atop the eastern gridiron world, feels none too happy about tomorrow's big intersectional game with the Oregon Aggies.

It would be a sad anti-climax to a brilliant season if the Violets were to be beaten by the westerners, yet things like that have been happening right along.

In explaining the victory of N. Y. U. over Carnegie Tech last Saturday, Meehan said:

"We took the game right in our stride. It was just another football game to us. The burden of proof was all on the other side, since Carnegie Tech naturally was under the strain of having to uphold a reputation for not having been beaten or tied.

"For the Oregon game, we have had to point. Also, we will miss Al Lassman, our captain, and the best tackle I ever saw in action."

The fact that New York University's team has had to work up a fever over this engagement is likely to weigh heavily against the Eastern champions. Time after time this season, a team has come up to the climax of the season only to go down before an eleven which it might have defeated easily under different circumstances.

XENIA ELIMINATED FROM LEAGUE TITLE BY NARROW DEFEAT

Piqua, Likely Winner, Escaped With Tie In Xenia Game

While Xenia is eliminated from consideration for the 1928 championship of the Miami Valley High School League, the Buccaneers at least had the satisfaction of playing to a scoreless tie the team that is a heavy favorite to win the title—Piqua High School.

The Buccaneers have concluded their schedule in the league and now occupy third place with a possibility of finishing in the runner-up position providing Greenville does the unexpected and defeats Sidney Thanksgiving Day.

Xenia's record in the league includes victories over Miamisburg and Troy, by scores of 14 to 7 and 6 to 0, respectively. Piqua, although outplayed to a great extent, succeeded in holding Central to a scoreless tie, while Greenville escaped with a 6 to 6 tie on a muddy field. Then Sidney ruined Xenia's title aspirations with an exceedingly lucky 2 to 0 victory, a safety providing the winning margin on another slippery field. Xenia outscored its league opponents twenty-six to fifteen.

Piqua, which winds up its league schedule at Troy Thanksgiving Day, has only to defeat or tie the Trojans to be declared league champions. Piqua has been undefeated. Sidney retains an outside chance for the title providing it beats Greenville and Piqua loses to Troy.

All home games of the Kellys will be played at the Fairground Coliseum on Sunday afternoons.

Numbered among the stars on the Kelly roster is Harry Schwab, one of the finest court players ever developed in the Miami Valley. For three years he was the king pin of state champion basketball teams at Stivers High School and since has engaged in pro basketball for a half-dozen years.

Blair Gullion, scintillant at Purdue, is another star in the Kelly lineup.

The Kiblers are made up of former college stars and among them are Jenkins and Douglas who made court history at Denison. Hax of Capital and McCann and Maxton of Wittenberg are also on the team.

By PHIL FRAME

THE magnet of tradition is expected to draw the greatest crowd of the season to Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday afternoon, when Xenia Central High Buccaneers and Springfield High clash in their annual Thanksgiving Day football tilt.

Here is a contest in which Springfield will enter as the underdogs since it has succeeded in taming only Cedarville High in its entire list of opponents this season.

The Buccaneers, with a successful season already earned, are polishing up their offense this week to meet the stiff defense expected to be put up by the Reaper City eleven.

Xenia looks upon Springfield as its strongest traditional rival and the student body and football warriors in particular would rather win the Springfield game than any other on the schedule.

Fair weather and a dry field are what Coach "Pinky" Wilson and his charges are hoping for the game. Springfield and the Buccaneers have battled in the rain and mud for many years. Both teams are expected to go in for an air game.

Buoyed up by a strong hope for victory over Springfield for the first time since 1922, the Buccaneers are optimistic of victory but are not taking their opponents lightly.

A little more sandpaper on the rough edges this week and the Buccaneers will be ready for the actual conflict, which will close the 1928 season for both schools.

It is rather widely known that both teams set more store in victory in their coming clash than they have on all the rest of the games they've played so far this year.

In Springfield-land, Coach Russell Hull's much-kicked-about team is licking the wound of a 53 to 0 defeat administered by Middletown last Saturday and is hopefully awaiting a possible victory.

It is hardly probable that the personnel of Xenia's starting eleven, which has been practically the same in recent weeks, will be changed. Birch Bell, flashy sophomore half, who sustained an injury to his right hand in the Sidney game and did not play against Wilmington, will be back at his old position fully recovered and eager to do his share toward defeating the invaders.

Xenia's make-shift backfield in the Wilmington contest clicked together with the forward wall in excellent regularity. A sharp hitting, driving attack spiced with a deceptive forward passing threat, may be the goal of attainment that will be sought by the Buccaneers for the Springfield struggle.

Xenia's attack this season has been slow in getting over the final chalk mark and any delays that are met on the way are likely to prove fatal. However, Central showed a rather quick-scoring offense against Wilmington and may repeat against Springfield.

Springfield will come to Xenia with nothing and Xenia hopes to send it back with nothing. Springfield probably still feels the effects of the pummeling it received from the burly Middletown eleven Saturday and may be in poor physical shape for the game.

Xenia fans will see ten senior members of the squad in action for the last time. By the way, Xenia has not been defeated in a home game this season, although tied once here, and will strive to the utmost to keep this record unblemished.

Central Has Beaten Springfield Twice

Now is the time for the Xenia Central High Buccaneers to end their season successfully with a victory over their dearest rival, Springfield High, on Turkey Day this week.

The drudgery of the schedule is past. The supremacy of the Miami Valley High School League has virtually been decided, with Xenia no longer concerned as to what team shall receive the spoils.

Just ahead, however, is a game which will settle an ancient enmity which is always rehashed at this time of the year.

The Thanksgiving Day tilt portends great things. Xenia and Springfield will indulge in an annual private quarrel from which the Buccaneers hope to emerge victorious for the first time since 1922—six years ago. Last season Xenia came close to victory but the game ended in a 6 to 6 tie.

Now the Blue and White eleven has a chance—a better chance than usual—to close its books with a record of having performed a feat which has been accomplished by Xenia teams only twice since 1911, to wit: beat Springfield.

Xenia and Springfield football rivalry probably extends far back of 1911 but the records disclose that since that year Springfield has been returned the victor eleven times and Xenia twice while one game was tied in fourteen contests played.

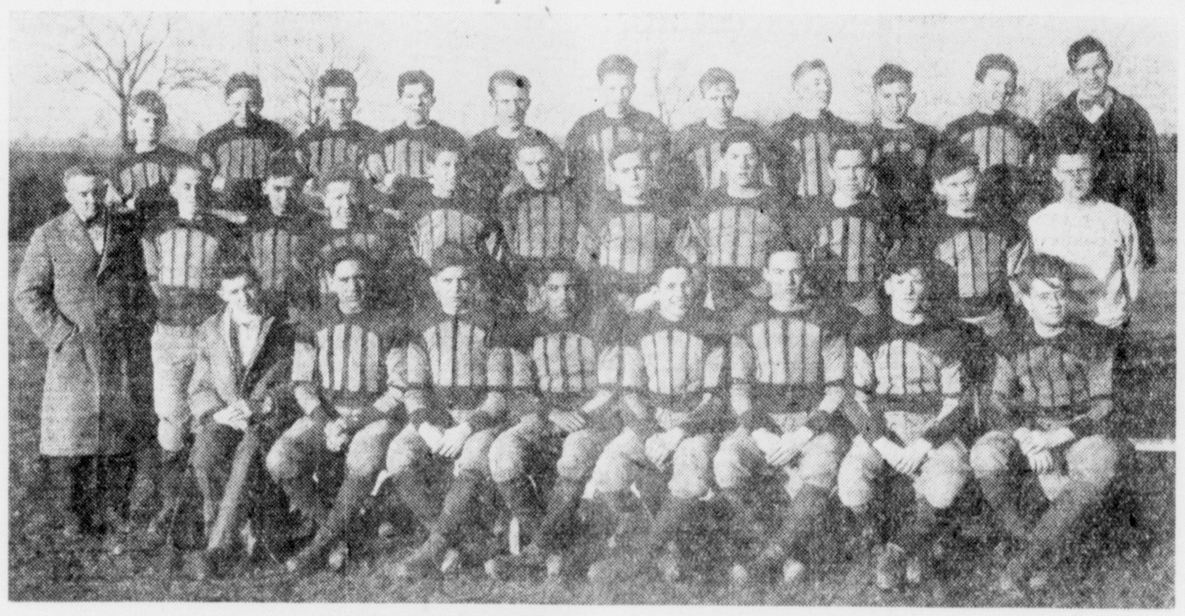

Over this same period, Springfield teams have rolled up an impressive total of 423 points against eighty-three for Xenia elevens.

Xenia's two victories came on successive years in 1921 and 1922 by scores of 34 to 0 and 20 to 0, respectively. Jerry Katherman's team did the trick for the first time in 1921 and was undefeated and scored upon but once that year. "Puss" Burgner was at the helm the following year and having inherited a number of veterans from the "miracle" team of the preceding season, also turned out a corking good team, which lost but one game. After that Xenia drew a blank insofar as victories over Springfield were concerned.

Xenia and Springfield have met annually on the gridiron since 1911 with breaks only in 1913, 1917 and 1925. Records of the Turkey Day opponents since 1911 follow:

1911—Xenia 0, Springfield 29.
1912—Xenia 0, Springfield 95.
1913—No game.
1914—Xenia 10, Springfield 15.
1915—Xenia 0, Springfield 47.
1916—Xenia 0, Springfield 36.
1917—No game.
1918—Xenia 7, Springfield 48.
1919—Xenia 0, Springfield 39.
1920—Xenia 0, Springfield 41.
1921—Xenia 34, Springfield 0.
1922—Xenia 20, Springfield 0.
1923—Xenia 0, Springfield 33.
1924—Xenia 6, Springfield 27.
1925—No game.
1926—Xenia 0, Springfield 7.
1927—Xenia 6, Springfield 6.

He'll Coach at Penn

KELLYS WILL OPEN WITH KIBLER TEAM

DAYTON, Nov. 28.—The Dayton Kellys who will represent this city in the professional basketball world during the coming season will open their schedule next Sunday when they oppose the Kibler Clothes of Springfield. All home games of the Kellys will be played at the Fairground Coliseum on Sunday afternoons.

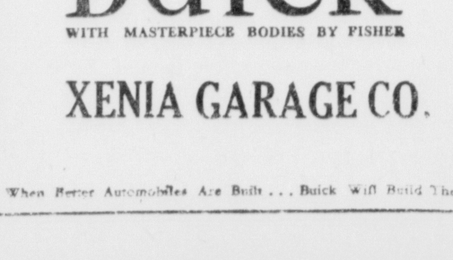

Numbered among the stars on the Kelly roster is Harry Schwab, one of the finest court players ever developed in the Miami Valley. For three years he was the king pin of state champion basketball teams at Stivers High School and since has engaged in pro basketball for a half-dozen years.

Blair Gullion, scintillant at Purdue, is another star in the Kelly lineup.

The Kiblers are made up of former college stars and among them are Jenkins and Douglas who made court history at Denison. Hax of Capital and McCann and Maxton of Wittenberg are also on the team.

OHIO WESLEYAN'S SCOTCH KICKER

Though born in Glasgow, Scotland, James Glancy, star fullback of the Ohio Wesleyan eleven, the outfit that dumped Michigan, 17 to 7, prefers to kick footballs rather than play the grand old Scottish game of golf. Glancy, who is captain of the Ohioans, set a record of making 57 out of 60 placement kick attempts in practice this season. He is shown booting the ball, which had been held by Merwin Breese, Wesleyan quarterback.

Wilberforce Primed for Annual Grid Classic

PUNTS AND PASSES

THURSDAY'S holiday football classic should bring a colorful crowd of fans to Cox Memorial Athletic Field to see Xenia Central Buccaneers and Springfield dispute superiority in their annual gridiron argument.

If the weather is right, which means dry underfoot with the proper football tang in the air, Xenians should be able to enjoy a real afternoon of entertainment. This goes for people who have never seen a football game as well as dyed-in-the-wool fans, for there is plenty of attraction about a hotly contested game to claim the interest of everyone, regardless of whether they are informed on the intricacies of the game.

Central High authorities are taking steps to make Thursday afternoon's grid battle one to be remembered, regardless of the outcome of the game itself, and since there is no other counter attraction in the city, it will be considered smart to attend the game as well as financially aid the school athletic department.

* * *

THANKSGIVING Day games used to mean a battle with the alumni for Central High and these games annually drew large holiday crowds to Gatch field, Dayton Ave., which was the home field of the blue and white for years.

In those days the alumni used to organize into a real football team, former high school players practicing for several weeks to get themselves in shape for the one game. Not infrequently these former stars proved too much for the regular team and the games turned out disastrously for the school team.

Alumni games were still played after the high school team moved to a field approximately where Cox Field is now located, but running almost north-east and south-west. It was just a field with goal posts at either end—no effort being made to convert it into a real gridiron. Finally interest in the alumni games declined, largely through inability to arouse sufficient interest among graduates to get them to go through the hard training necessary to prepare a team for one game.

* * *

BACK in the Gatch Field days to call the team the "blue and white," the present school colors, would be a mis-nomer. Players furnished most of their own uniforms and they showed up in any colored jersey that appealed to their particular and individual fancy. Football shoes were mostly dress shoes with cleats fastened to the soles and there were nondescript headgears or no helmets at all. The school furnished the "socks appeal," but even they were frequently "holey" and one football, which was expected to last all season.

After the period when the team played near where the present gridiron is located, the team played one season on the site of the present Central High School building. Then when Jerry L. Katherman took up the coaching burden succeeding Ward Young, the games were played again at Gatch Field.

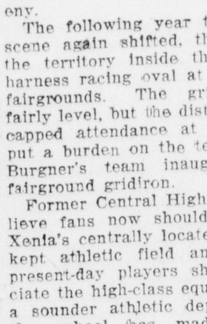

It was fitting that the Katherman team, which set a record in winning nine games and losing one, should have played on the gridiron that had been the scene of so many of Xenia's earlier football triumphs. And by the way, it was that team which gave Springfield its first defeat by Xenia since 1911, the victory developing into a complete rout of the team that was then coached by Oliver Matheny.

The following year the football scene again shifted, this time to the territory inside the half-mile harness racing oval at the county fairgrounds. The gridiron was fairly level, but the distance handicapped attendance at games and put a burden on the team. "Puss" Burgner's team inaugurated the fairground gridiron.

Former Central High players believe fans now should appreciate Xenia's centrally located and well-kept athletic field and that the present-day players should appreciate the high-class equipment that a sounder athletic department at the school has made possible. Xenia's modern teams look trim and formidable in their smart uniforms and ample playing equipment.

GIBNEY WILL LEAD TEAM IN FINALE

Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson announced Wednesday that he has appointed John Gibney, end, as field captain for Xenia Central High School's "Buccaneers" in the concluding game of the season — the Thanksgiving Day battle with Springfield High School at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

GIBNEY

Gibney is one of the outstanding players on the team. A senior this year, Gibney has been converted into an end and tackle from a fullback in order to strengthen the line. He has had three years of experience.

The old system of electing a captain for each succeeding year in basketball and football was abolished at Central this year and a captain is appointed by the coach for each game. Coach Wilson has not decided whether the letter men will be permitted to select an honorary captain for the season.

OLD RIVALS TANGLE FOR ELEVENTH TIME IN CLEVELAND GAME

West Virginia Holds Victory Edge; Seven Seniors Play

By PHIL FRAME

Wilberforce University's football eleven is primed for the traditional Thanksgiving Day game with West Virginia Collegiate Institute at Cleveland, O., Thursday afternoon.

Rivalry between the two schools on the gridiron extends back to 1917 and in the ten games that have been played over this period, Wilberforce has won only once, in 1926 by a margin of 3 to 2 as a result of a field goal.

Institute has won six times and three games ended in ties. In 1927 the teams battled to a 12 to 12 draw at Columbus. The game Thursday, heretofore always played at Columbus, is to be staged at Cleveland for the first time.

Seven Wilberforce regulars will be playing their last football game for the institution. A majority of these payers, including "Wu Fang" Ward, have received All-American rating among the colored colleges of the country at one time or another during their university athletic careers.

Head Coach Harry C. Graves and Assistant Coach Henry Corrothers are attempting to keep the regulars free from injuries for the important game.

Institute is coached by Adolph P. Hamblin. The "Yellow-Jackets" have shown remarkable progress this season under the tutelage of Hamblin, who is known as the "Silent Mentor."

Following is a summary of Wilberforce-Institute football games since 1917:

1917—Wilberforce 0, Institute 0.
1918—No game.
1919—Wilberforce 0, Institute 41.
1920—Wilberforce 7, Institute 13.
1921—Wilberforce 0, Institute 14.
1922—Wilberforce 0, Institute 6.
1923—Wilberforce 3, Institute 6.
1924—Wilberforce 0, Institute 0.
1925—Wilberforce 3, Institute 7.
1926—Wilberforce 3, Institute 2.
1927—Wilberforce 12, Institute 12.

CENTRAL PRODUCED ONLY ONE FOOTBALL TEAM UNDEFEATED

Won All Games In '21; Teams Have Lost More Than Won

JERRY KATHERMAN

During the last eighteen years of football competition, including the present season to date, Xenia Central High teams have won sixty-one games, lost seventy-three and tied twelve. In seven of these years since 1911 Xenia teams have won more games than they lost. In eight seasons defeats were more numerous than victories and in three campaigns Blue and White elevens finished on a .500 percentage basis. Following is the record of Xenia teams since 1911:

	W.	L.	T.
1912	1	9	0
1913	0	7	0
1914	5	3	0
1915	1	4	1
1916	0	6	0
1917	4	5	0
1918	3	3	1
1919	3	6	0
1920	4	3	1
1921	9	0	0
1922	7	1	1
1923	1	5	1
1924	0	9	0
1925	4	4	0
1926	8	2	0
1927	3	3	3
1928	4	2	3
Totals	61	73	12

These figures show that only one team in that time went through its season undefeated. That was in 1921 when Jerry L. Katherman was coach. The team that year and the next won the Class B southwestern Ohio championship grid title.

The Amateur Athletic Union has once more withheld action on or denied the validity of records set by several of the leading athletes of the country the past year.

Which means, in most cases, that the efforts these men put forth to win fame and glory in the athletic world were wasted—due directly to the inefficiency of the union.

How else can it be viewed?

The officials will spend months reviewing the conditions under which records were made before allowing these marks. But not one-tenth of that effort is extended in advance to assure the conditions demanded.

It is to be assumed that the A. A. U. is aware of the date and location of the important track and field meets of the country—in view of the fact that the organization's sanction is necessary if the results of the meets are to be considered from the standpoint of the record books.

Then why is it that after a given meet of major proportions is over the officials discover that the pins holding the bar for the pole vault were longer than the legal length?

Why is it that they permit a race to be run when the presence of water at the end of the lanes prevents accurate determination of the finish line?

Why is it that they will permit such incidents to occur, with the direct result of placing the victorious athletes in such cases in the light of traveling under the false light of unofficial records for a few months—and then being smacked on the head by an official edict later?

Isn't it humanly possible to dispatch to the major athletic meets in advance men who are qualified to pass upon the conditions which later feature in the disputes over records?

Consider the mess in which football or baseball would find itself if the scores of the various games and records of same had to pass a general review from six to ten months later—with the possibilities that Notre Dame might find its recent victory over Army tossed out, because the wrong type of goal posts were used—or the Yankees might be set back into second place in the American league because Babe Ruth's belt was buckled in the wrong notch?

HECTIC FOOTBALL DAYS THIS FALL; FIVE ARE UNDEFEATED

It doesn't take long to call the roll of unbeaten teams in college gridiron ranks.

It is extremely doubtful whether any Saturday so far has accomplished as many upsets and form reversals as last Saturday. They echoed from one end of the country to the other. And now it is a comparatively simple task to line up the selected coterie of teams that have escaped either defeat or tie in one of the wildest and most acrobatic campaigns the sport has ever known.

Carnegie Tech, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Princeton and Ohio Wesleyan were among the few shot down in Saturday's unheavals. After checking these off the list, glance over this small but noteworthy vanguard of the victorious:

Florida, Tennessee and Georgia Tech in the South; Boston College in the East and Southern California in the Far West. Southern California, however, although unbeaten, has a tie game to detract from its prestige as an undefeated team.

These are the major teams with spotless records in the scramble for national as well as sectional honors. They may not stay in this class long for in fact several, if not all of them, face forthcoming opposition that may spill them as unceremoniously as others have been.

It is a curious fact that not a team in the usually strong middle-west can class itself as unbeaten this season. Such is life in the big colleges these hectic football days.

West Virginia rose to the heights of football fame during the season of 1919 when the Rogers inspired machine from the mountain fastness ran over one major opponent after another.

Princeton received the shock of the season when on Nov. 1 of that season it was rolled flat beneath the Mountaineers. The score was 25 to 0, a very business-like beating to receive from what had casually been referred to as a practice game.

Captain Rogers, an All-American fullback, not only ripped the Tigers' line into ribbons, but was on the hurling and receiving end of a barrage of forward passes.

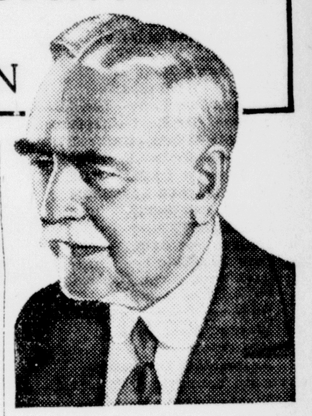

West Virginia scored 19 points in the first quarter with Princeton absolutely helpless before Rogers.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time.

Until you don't feel the need of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY drugstore has them. Adv.

West Virginia rose to the heights of football fame during the season of 1919 when the Rogers inspired machine from the mountain fastness ran over one major opponent after another.

Princeton received the shock of the season when on Nov. 1 of that season it was rolled flat beneath the Mountaineers. The score was 25 to 0, a very business-like beating to receive from what had casually been referred to as a practice game.

Captain Rogers, an All-American fullback, not only ripped the Tigers' line into ribbons, but was on the hurling and receiving end of a barrage of forward passes.

West Virginia scored 19 points in the first quarter with Princeton absolutely helpless before Rogers.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time.

CASCARETS
They Work While You Sleep!

Until you don't feel the need of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY drugstore has them.

BRILLIANT RADIO PROGRAM OF GRAND OPERA IS OFFERED

By RUTH HOWELL

There's nothing so gala as grand opera, even at home on the radio. And the National Broadcasting Co., will have a brilliant opera season of its own this year. As a matter of fact, the season has already started, and the National Grand Opera Co. will be well along in the repertoire of operas suitable for radio presentation before the Metropolitan has thought of opening its doors. The weekly schedule began September 17, and already we have heard "Aida," "Rigoletto," "I Pagliacci," "Faust," and others.

This season's schedule is the most pretentious that has been attempted. But with the success of former years, with greatly increased public interest, and with artists trained by years of radio work as well as in visual opera, there is no doubt that these operas will make excellent and enjoyable programs. The only other similar radio offering of the season will be the series by the Chicago Opera Co. This will not come so frequently, however, nor on so many stations as will be used for the National Grand Opera Co. broadcasts.

The grand opera presentations for this season will be longer and more inclusive than formerly, consuming an hour and a half, regularly on Monday evenings from 9:30 to 11, eastern standard time. In past years, radio operas have required only an hour for performance, and have necessarily been short, often slightly hurried and a bit confusing to the listeners. Cesare Sodero, conductor and manager of the company for the past seasons, will be able to use more operas this year in the increased broadcasting time. There will also be more time for the intervals of dialogue—called recitative in opera—which give the life to a stage performance.

Preparing a long opera for a comparatively short broadcast time is a tedious task, and one that requires much time and thought, as well as excellent judgment. The radio-opera productions we get are constantly improving. Artists sing with more interest, and there is more time allowed between arias, choruses, etc. Overtures, which determine the atmosphere for operatic presentations, are now being included in the program, and both in these and in the accompaniments, the enlarged orchestral support is evident.

The operas to be offered this season on the radio include the most famous works of many composers. Following is the schedule of Monday night radio operas for the remainder of November and December:

Nov. 26.—The Light From St. Agnes—Harling.
Dec. 3.—L'Amico Fritz—Mascagni.
Dec. 10.—Fidelio—Beethoven.
Dec. 17.—Lucia di Lammermoor—Donizetti.
Dec. 24.—Hansel and Gretel—Humperdinck.
Dec. 31.—Shanewis—Cadman.

"Why, did you ever see such price s?"

READ THIS FIRST:

Several disturbing elements had already entered the life of Byrd Hamilton, who had just married the arrogant irresistible Larry Browning. They were spending the night at the Blackstone at Cincinnati, where Larry's friends, who had come to attend their wedding, were giving a party in their honor. When the party had reached a high pitch in the crowded rooms, Byrd found that this fast-moving crowd had no interest for her. When she discovered India Campbell, a former sweetheart of Larry's and Larry sitting dangerously on a window sill before an open window, they misinterpreted her anxiety as jealousy. Humiliated, she left the party and returned to their rooms. She dropped off to sleep, conscious that an occasion was being celebrated but she had no part in it.

The next afternoon the crowd congregated in their suite for a "pick-up" party, and Larry, the gay center of it, paid all the bills. That night they left for their honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs with their friends at the depot to see them off. Byrd missed Larry as the train pulled out, but he had been saying good-bye to India.

Byrd was disturbed and overwhelmed by the costly magnificence of the Greenbriar and, in contrast to the expensively gowned women around her, her clothes looked tawdry and shabby.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER IX

She studied the people about her. There were grayhaired men in the flightiest-looking outfits. Most of them wore loud golf clothes, and she suspected that they didn't play golf at all. Plaided knickers, with lavender shirts, ties, handkerchiefs to match, and golf socks that made their thin legs look like gayly-striped stick candy.

Their wives looked like bathroom accessories in one-piece affairs made out of heavy-napped bata toweling and crocheted bedspreads.

All the extravagance of people whose only ambition and interest in life is to look better dressed than their neighbors.

"Doesn't it seem silly for people to take clothes, and sports and vacations so seriously?" asked Byrd, smiling a little sarcastically.

"Not at all," said Larry, "if a fellow's clever and knows how to work it, he ought to be able to spend most of his life having a good time."

"Well, I wouldn't call it a good time," said Byrd, with conviction.

It was Larry's belief that work was a sort of punishment, and only the stupid drew the sentence.

They were sitting at one of the many tables spread over the wide veranda of the "Casino," which housed a restaurant, reading rooms and the golf lockers. Larry was looking over the menu. When the waiter appeared, he ordered glasses, ice and white rock, and drawing a flask from his pocket, he said:

"Well, let's drink to the next milestone in the old honeymoon," and filled two glasses.

Byrd wished that Larry wouldn't have to make an occasion out of everything, even a simple thing like a meal and, think he had to drink to it. She touched her glass several times in an effort to be a "good sport."

But suddenly, as she glanced at the menu, she was glad for the Scotch, for it fortified her against shock. As she looked down the long list of luncheon dishes, the prices seemed to leap off the page and dance arrogantly before her eyes.

"Why, Larry," she exclaimed, breathlessly, "did you ever see such prices?"

Under frowning brows, Larry was looking this way and that, to see if she was being overheard.

"Cold consomme, sixty cents," continued Byrd, innocently, unaware of the pain she was causing Larry. "Cold chicken with potato salad, one dollar and seventy-five cents. Why, just a plain ham sandwich is a dollar. How are we ever going to get enough to eat?"

Her voice was incredulous. She was distinctly alarmed.

"Please lower your voice, dear. It may seem strange to these people to have you upset over what are ordinary hotel prices," he said, in a voice in which disapproval tinkled like tiny icicles.

"Well, to me they sound exorbitant," insisted Byrd. "And ridiculous, too. Do you think we can afford to stay here?" Her voice showed genuine worry. "There must be other places....."

"Listen, Byrd. Please don't let the waiters know what you think," Larry eyed her piercingly, with his black eyes. "We wouldn't have come here if we hadn't been able to afford it. In fact, the only people who do come here are those who are supposed to be able to pay the prices."

"But Larry, dearest, there's so many things we'll be needing when we go to housekeeping—" expostulated Byrd.

"You're not very complimentary to me," said Larry, "hinting that I can't afford a week's honeymoon and a home, too."

His tone was quite ironical. Byrd's eyes fluttered down to her lap to hide the tears that had started.

"Big chump!" she scolded herself. "Larry's a successful business man. What do you know about his affairs, anyway?"

Byrd was very sweet to him the rest of the meal, eating whatever Larry ordered, and closing her eyes tightly when the bill was presented.

* * *

"Now we're going back to those shops and buy you some clothes," said Larry, with a determined air. "And if you yap about the prices, I'll send you back to that hick town that gave you all these hayseed ideas!"

The entered the "Snobbiest Toggery," a shop owned by one Mme. Majla Mogabgab, importer from Paris. A young hipless woman, with a Pekinese under her arm, eyed Byrd somewhat insolently, as she took her in from the crown of her little felt hat to the toe of her sensible shoe. After that look, thought Byrd, I'll let Larry buy the whole shop for me.

With a practiced eye, Larry chose three sport outfits for her, with shoes, stockings and hats to match, or not to match, as the madam advised. A swagger stick was the last note. Then, at another shop, they bought her a bathing suit in two shades of orange, which seemed to catch the exact tones of her coppery hair. A cap and cape of black taffeta, trimmed with orange. And the darlingest little plaid sandals. Larry left their suite number and instructions that the articles were to be charged to their hotel account.

"Solomon's wives' clothes!" said Byrd, laughing. "I could dress for the rest of my life on what you paid for those things."

Larry was pleased with her appreciation.

"If you do, I'll divorce you on the spot! Anyway, if I ever see one of those laundress' models you bought yesterday, I might commit a crime," answered Larry. "I'll tell you what you do. Send them to Pat, with our love and apologies."

Byrd looked dubious.

"Why, they cost a hundred dollars," she sail, miserably. "Can we really afford to give them..... "

"Oh Lord," groaned Larry. "There you go again. Cut that word 'afford' out of your solar plexus."

They were having dinner in the great formal dining room of the hotel, with windows like great double doors that reached from the ceiling to the floor. Byrd wore her second best evening gown, and felt that she looked particularly well in it. It was made of green silver cloth, and she looked like a slender silver birch, with her swaying, lithe body, supple and straight as a young tree, as she walked down the aisle.

She smiled contentedly, as she looked at Larry across the white tablecloth, across the shining silver. But he was looking at her gown, and slowly shook his head. She was paralyzed with the thought that tomorrow Larry intended to buy her some evening gowns.

She quickly looked down at the menu, resolving to assume that bored expression that she saw on the faces of the people around her who wouldn't admit, for anything in the world, that a meal was the most important event in their lives.

The first price on the menu gave her such a jolt that she had a sprained neck for the rest of the week.

"Why Larry," Byrd looked as if her eyes might pop right out of her head, "look! Supreme of chicken, under glass, Mary Garden, two dollars and a half. New peas, one dollar. Did you ever see such—" Then she caught herself.

"Let's talk about the weather," said Larry, coldly, calmly writing down their orders without consulting her.

As the waiter laid the check at Larry's plate, Byrd noticed it was considerably over twelve dollars, and he left a two-dollar bill as a tip.

Byrd's clear, golden beauty attracted attention everywhere, and many eyes followed her as they walked down the middle aisle.

"This dress is lovely," thought Byrd, "or why would people be looking at it? I'm never again going to tell Larry—what I pay for things. Just because I pay so little, he's sure there's something wrong with them."

They listened to the evening concert in the ballroom. As they came out, Larry withdrew to talk to several men. As Byrd was waiting for Larry, she heard a voice at her side.

"Isn't this little Byrd Hamilton?"

Turning, Byrd faced a small, wiry man with smooth, gray hair and a handsome, shrewr face. He was smiling into her eyes.

"Why, Progress Polk, where in the world did you come from?" and Byrd seemed delighted to see him. "Are you vacationing here, too, and are Mrs. Polk and all the little Polkies here?"

"No, I'm alone. Here for a few days arranging the preliminary business for our convention next week. All of the bankers in the country. Your dad coming down?" he inquired.

Byrd smiled mischievously.

"Well, you see he's been so busy marrying off his second daughter that he hasn't had time even to think about business!"

"Jehoshaphat! Don't tell me you're here on your wedding trip?" he asked, surprised. "Golly! I can't believe you're married. Why, you were running around in rompers just a few years ago! And I remember the time I took you upstairs and changed your—"

"Now, Progress, be careful! Here's my husband!" laughed Byrd, as Larry joined them.

"Larry, this is Mr. Progress Polk, president of the First National at Cleveland, and an old friend of my father's. And this is my husband, Larry Browning, also from Cleveland. Don't tell me that Cleveland's two leading citizens don't know each other!" Byrd showed how proud she was to introduce Larry to Mr. Polk.

The men shook hands and exchanged a few remarks.

"What firm are you with?" asked Mr. Polk.

"Church, Peterson and Duncan, investments," said Larry, somewhat truculently, Byrd thought. "A small firm, but moving along."

BRILLIANT RADIO PROGRAM OF GRAND OPERA IS OFFERED

By RUTH HOWELL

There's nothing so gala as grand opera, even at home on the radio. And the National Broadcasting Co. will have a brilliant opera season of its own this year. As a matter of fact, the season has already started, and the National Grand Opera Co. will be well along in the repertoire of operas suitable for radio presentation before the Metropolitan has thought of opening its doors. The weekly schedule began September 17, and already we have heard "Aida," "Rigoletto," "I Pagliacci," "Faust," and others.

This season's schedule is the most pretentious that has been attempted. But with the success of former years, with greatly increased public interest, and with artists trained by years of radio work as well as in visual opera, there is no doubt that these operas will make excellent and enjoyable programs. The only other similar radio offering of the season will be the series by the Chicago Opera Co. This will not come so frequently, however, nor on so many stations as will be used for the National Grand Opera Co. broadcasts.

The grand opera presentations for this season will be longer and more inclusive than formerly, consuming an hour and a half, regularly on Monday evenings from 9:30 to 11, eastern standard time. In past years, radio operas have required only an hour for performance, and have necessarily been short, often slightly hurried and a bit confusing to the listeners. Cesare Sodero, conductor and manager of the company for the past seasons, will be able to use more operas this year in the increased broadcasting time. There will also be more time for the intervals of dialogue—called recitative in opera—which give the life to a stage performance.

Preparing a long opera for a comparatively short broadcast time is a tedious task, and one that requires much time and thought, as well as excellent judgment. The radio-opera productions we get are constantly improving. Artists sing with more interest, and there is more time allowed between arias, choruses, etc. Overtures, which determine the atmosphere for operatic presentations, are now being included in the program, and both in these and in the accompaniments, the enlarged orchestral support is evident.

The operas to be offered this season on the radio include the most famous works of many composers. Following is the schedule of Monday night radio operas for the remainder of November and December:

Nov. 26.—The Light From St. Agnes—Harling.
Dec. 3.—L'Amico Fritz—Mascagni.
Dec. 10.—Fidelio—Beethoven.
Dec. 17.—Lucia di Lammermoor—Donizetti.
Dec. 24.—Hansel and Gretel—Humperdinck.
Dec. 31.—Shanewis—Cadman.

READ THIS FIRST:

Several disturbing elements had already entered the life of Byrd Hamilton, who had just married the arrogant irresistible Larry Browning. They were spending the night at the Blackstone at Cincinnati, where Larry's friends, who had come to attend their wedding, were giving a party in their honor. When the party had reached a high pitch in the crowded rooms, Byrd found that this fast-moving crowd had no interest for her. When she discovered India Campbell, a former sweetheart of Larry's and Larry sitting dangerously on a window sill before an open window, they misinterpreted her anxiety as jealousy. Humiliated, she left the party and returned to their rooms. She dropped off to sleep, conscious that an occasion was being celebrated but she had no part in it.

The next afternoon the crowd congregated in their suite for a "pick-up" party, and Larry, the gay center of it, paid all the bills. That night they left for their honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs with their friends at the depot to see them off. Byrd missed Larry as the train pulled out, but he had been saying good-bye to India.

Byrd was disturbed and overwhelmed by the costly magnificence of the Greenbriar and, in contrast to the expensively gowned women around her, her clothes looked tawdry and shabby.

* * *

CHAPTER IX

She studied the people about her. There were grayhaired men in the flightiest-looking outfits. Most of them wore loud golf clothes, and she suspected that they didn't play golf at all. Plaided knickers, with lavender shirts, ties, handkerchiefs to match, and golf socks that made their thin legs look like gayly-striped stick candy.

Their wives looked like bathroom accessories in one-piece affairs made out of heavy-napped bath toweling and crocheted bedspreads.

All the extravagance of people whose only ambition and interest in life is to look better dressed than their neighbors.

"Doesn't it seem silly for people to take clothes, and sports and vacations so seriously?" asked Byrd, smiling a little sarcastically.

"Not at all," said Larry, "if a fellow's clever and knows how to work it, he ought to be able to spend most of his life having a good time."

"Well, I wouldn't call it a good time," said Byrd, with conviction.

It was Larry's belief that work was a sort of punishment, and only the stupid drew the sentence.

They were sitting at one of the many tables spread over the wide veranda of the "Casino," which housed a restaurant, reading rooms and the golf lockers. Larry was looking over the menu. When the waiter appeared, he ordered glasses, ice and white rock, and drawing a flask from his pocket, he said:

"Well, let's drink to the next milestone in the old honeymoon," and filled two glasses.

Byrd wished that Larry wouldn't have to make an occasion out of everything, even a simple thing like a meal and, think he had to drink to it. She touched her glass several times in an effort to be a "good sport."

But suddenly, as she glanced at the menu, she was glad for the Scotch, for it fortified her against shock. As she looked down the long list of luncheon dishes, the prices seemed to leap off the page and dance arrogantly before her eyes.

"Why, Larry," she exclaimed, breathlessly, "did you ever see such prices?"

Under frowning brows, Larry was looking this way and that, to see if she was being overheard.

"Cold consomme, sixty cents," continued Byrd, innocently, unaware of the pain she was causing Larry. "Cold chicken with potato salad, one dollar and seventy-five cents. Why, just a plain ham sandwich is a dollar. How are we ever going to get enough to eat?"

Her voice was incredulous. She was distinctly alarmed.

"Please lower your voice, dear. It may seem strange to these people to have you upset over what are ordinary hotel prices," he said, in a voice in which disapproval tinkled like tiny icicles.

"Well, to me they sound exorbitant," insisted Byrd. "And ridiculous, too. Do you think we can afford to stay here?" Her voice showed genuine worry. "There must be other places——"

"Listen, Byrd. Please don't let the waiters know what you think." Larry eyed her piercingly, with his black eyes. "We wouldn't have come here if we hadn't been able to afford it. In fact, the only people who do come here are those who are supposed to be able to pay the prices."

"But Larry, dearest, there's so many things we'll be needing when we go to housekeeping—" expostulated Byrd.

"You're not very complimentary to me," said Larry, "hinting that I can't afford a week's honeymoon and a home, too."

His tone was quite ironical. Byrd's eyes fluttered down to her lap to hide the tears that had started.

"Big chump!" she scolded herself. "Larry's a successful business man. What do you know about his affairs, anyway?"

Byrd was very sweet to him the rest of the meal, eating whatever Larry ordered, and closing her eyes tightly when the bill was presented.

* * *

"Now we're going back to those shops and buy you some clothes," said Larry, with a determined air. "And if you yap about the prices, I'll send you back to that hick town that gave you all these hayseed ideas!"

The entered the "Snobbiest Toggery," a shop owned by one Mme. Majla Mogabgab, importer from Paris. A young hipless woman, with a Pekinese under her arm, eyed Byrd somewhat insolently, as she took her in from the crown of her little felt hat to the toe of her sensible shoe. After that look, thought Byrd, I'll let Larry buy the whole shop for me.

With a practiced eye, Larry chose three sport outfits for her, with shoes, stockings and hats to match, or not to match, as the madam advised. A swagger stick was the last note. Then, at another shop, they bought her a bathing suit in two shades of orange, which seemed to catch the exact tones of her coppery hair. A cap and cape of black taffeta, trimmed with orange. And the darlingest little plaid sandals. Larry left their suite number and instructions that the articles were to be charged to their hotel account.

"Solomon's wives' clothes!" said Byrd, laughing. "I could dress for the rest of my life on what you paid for those things."

Larry was pleased with her appreciation.

"If you do, I'll divorce you on the spot! Anyway, if I ever see one of those laundress' models you bought yesterday, I might commit a crime," answered Larry. "I'll tell you what you do. Send them to Pat, with our love and apologies."

Byrd looked dubious.

"Why, they cost a hundred dollars," she said, miserably. "Can we really afford to give them——"

"Oh Lord," groaned Larry. "There you go again. Cut that word 'afford' out of your solar plexus."

They were having dinner in the great formal dining room of the hotel, with windows like great double doors that reached from the ceiling to the floor. Byrd wore her second best evening gown, and felt that she looked particularly well in it. It was made of green silver cloth, and she looked like a slender silver birch, with her swaying, lithe body, supple and straight as a young tree, as she walked down the aisle.

She smiled contentedly, as she looked at Larry across the white tableeloth, across the shining silver. But he was looking at her gown, and slowly shook his head. She was paralyzed with the thought that tomorrow Larry intended to buy her some evening gowns.

She quickly looked down at the menu, resolving to assume that bored expression that she saw on the faces of the people around her who wouldn't admit, for anything in the world, that a meal was the most important event in their lives.

The first price on the menu gave her such a jolt that she had a sprained neck for the rest of the week.

"Why Larry," Byrd looked as if her eyes might pop right out of her head, "look! Supreme of chicken, under glass, Mary Garden, two dollars and a half. New peas, one dollar. Did you ever see such—" Then she caught herself.

"Let's talk about the weather," said Larry, coldly, calmly writing down their orders without consulting her.

As the waiter laid the check at Larry's plate, Byrd noticed it was considerably over twelve dollars, and he left a two-dollar bill as a tip.

Byrd's clear, golden beauty attracted attention everywhere, and many eyes followed her as they walked down the middle aisle.

"This dress is lovely," thought Byrd, "or why would people be looking at it? I'm never again going to tell Larry what I pay for things. Just because I pay so little, he's sure there's something wrong with them."

They listened to the evening concert in the ballroom. As they came out, Larry withdrew to talk to several men. As Byrd was waiting for Larry, she heard a voice at her side.

"Isn't this little Byrd Hamilton?"

Turning, Byrd faced a small, wiry man with smooth, gray hair and a handsome, shrewr face. He was smiling into her eyes.

"Why, Progress Polk, where in the world did you come from?" and Byrd seemed delighted to see him. "Are you vacationing here, too, and are Mrs. Polk and all the little Polkies here?"

"No, I'm alone. Here for a few days arranging the preliminary business for our convention next week. All of the bankers in the country. Your dad coming down?" he inquired.

Byrd smiled mischievously.

"Well, you see he's been so busy marrying off his second daughter that he hasn't had time even to think about business!"

"Jehoshaphat! Don't tell me you're here on your wedding trip?" he asked, surprised. "Golly! I can't believe you're married. Why, you were running around in rompers just a few years ago! And I remember the time I took you upstairs and changed your——"

"Now, Progress, be careful! Here's my husband!" laughed Byrd, as Larry joined them.

"Larry, this is Mr. Progress Polk, president of the First National at Cleveland, and an old friend of my father's. And this is my husband, Larry Browning, also from Cleveland. Don't tell me that Cleveland's two leading citizens don't know each other!" Byrd showed how proud she was to introduce Larry to Mr. Polk.

The men shook hands and exchanged a few remarks.

"What firm are you with?" asked Mr. Polk.

"Church, Peterson and Duncan, investments," said Larry, somewhat gruculently, Byrd thought. "A small firm, but moving along."

The Theater

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Glory be—you're going to hear the old musical comedies over again. But in the talking movies.

Warners are reported buying thirty of tnem from the Shuberts, whose many theaters need plays, and to whom singing movies would be a godsend. Their Winter Garden already houses that Warner singing movie success, Al Jolson, in "The Singing Fool." Even in its girliest days, the Winter Garden, ex-home of revues, could not boast of such consistently large business.

Not all musical comedy movies are to be of old plays. Fox and others are hiring Broadway musical comedy writers to go to Hollywood to produce originals.

It is not too much to say that we soon shall have movie grand opera. Imagine what this means to smaller cities!

And one concern is even looking ahead to television days when a combination of radio and television will permit a person to hear and see plays in his own home. Theater owners, however, are not doing any cheering about that.

* * *

Another little theater of the movies has opened—this time the Little

DITA PARLO

Carnegie Playhouse, which terms itself "The Aristocrat of the Cinema." As with virtually all other little theaters, the bill is Russian. This time it is the American premiere of "Ten Days That Shook the World," directed by S. M. Eisenstein, who directed the justly noted "Potemkin."

* * *

Work is speeding on Gloria Swanson's singing-talking film, according to word from Hollywood, and the first part of the new year should see it in New York. It is called "Queen Kelly." Eric Von Stroheim is the director. Walter Byron is leading man, and Seena Owen also is in it. The locale is Germany and German East Africa. But it is reliably reported that the talking and the singing will be in English—probably with an accent.

Which reminds me that the newer talkies are likely to be in three languages. That doesn't mean the actors have to speak those languages. One of the big movie jobs of the future will be ghost linguist.

* * *

Will Rogers probably will be offered the leading role in a talking version of "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthurs's Court," which made a fortune as a straight movie about eight years ago.

* * *

One of the cheapest made pictures of the year is making almost the most money. "The Road to Ruin," a story of juvenile delinquency, cost only $15,000 to film. Willis Kent, producer, sold states' rights for a total of $100,000. Total income for the various folk who bought states' right will reach at least $1,500,000. The man who paid $5,000 for the Michigan rights netted $100,000 in surburban Detroit alone. States' right for New Jersey cost $5,000. In one city, Camden, the picture made $30,000. Kent is kicking himself.

Twenty Years Ago '08- -'28

The building on S. Detroit St., occupied by the Humston livery stable and owned by the heirs of the Barrett estate has been purchased by Charles Kelso, of the Central Electric Supply Co., owned by himself and Arthur Garfield. It will be converted into a garage.

The building committee of the First Reformed Church has accepted plans and specifications for the new church and parsonage, which were prepared by Albert Pretzinger, Dayton architect.

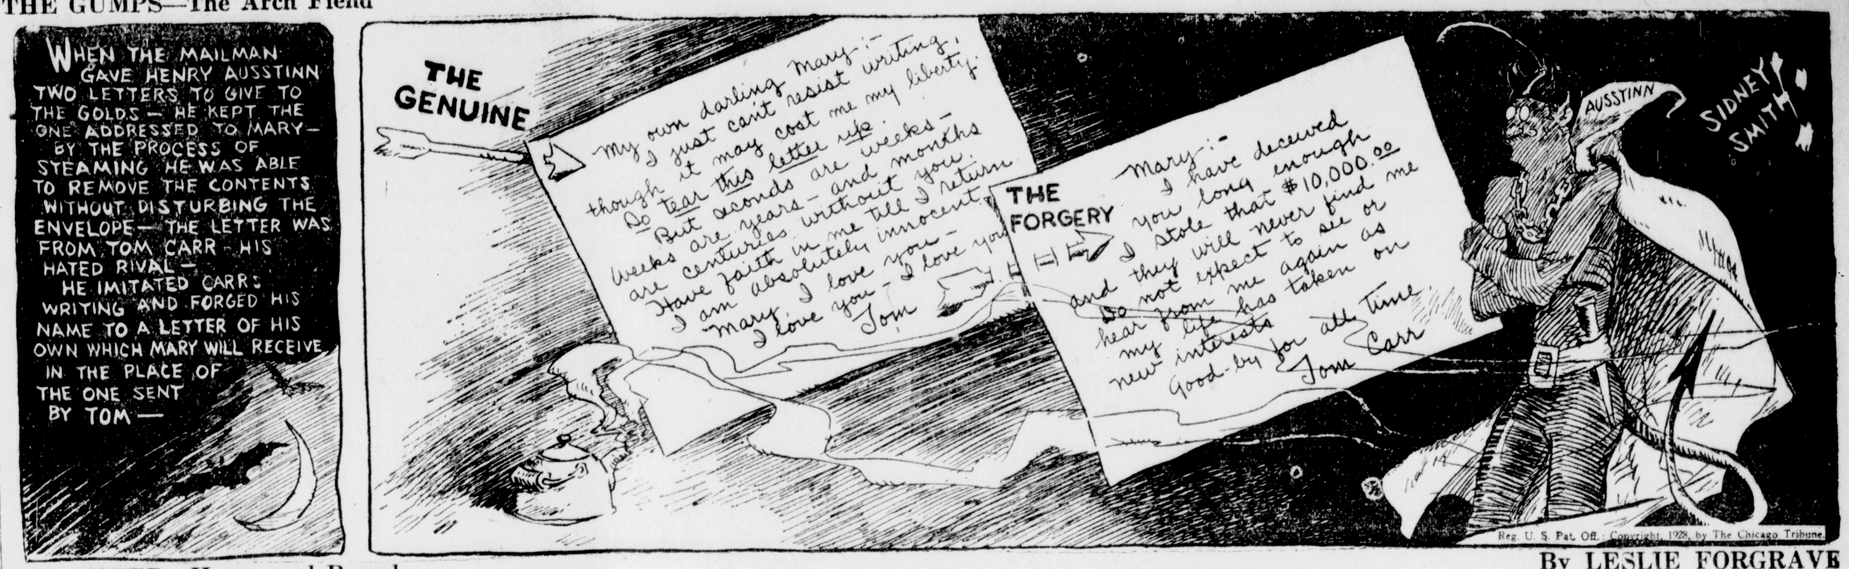

A wounded carrier pigeon, which fluttered down in front of the home of Henry Slagle, N. West St., Thanksgiving Day, carried on its leg a metal band on which was engraved "1907-12 R. M."

Prof. G. J. Graham is attending the Central Ohio Superintendent's Round Table which is being held in the Phillips House at Dayton.

WILL SELL SCHOOL

Bloomington school, abandoned now for school purposes, will be sold at public auction by the Jefferson Twp., board of education Saturday, December 8. The school is a two-room brick structure, with a basement and steam heating plant. Consolidation of schools in that district made the abandonment of the small school possible.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

The Theater

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Glory be—you're going to hear the old musical comedies over again. But in the talking movies.

Warners are reported buying thirty of tnem from the Shuberts, whose many theaters need plays, and to whom singing movies would be a godsend. Their Winter Garden already houses that Warner singing movie success, Al Jolson, in "The Singing Fool." Even in its girliest days, the Winter Garden, ex-home of revues, could not boast of such consistently large business.

Not all musical comedy movies are to be of old plays. Fox and others are hiring Broadway musical comedy writers to go to Hollywood to produce originals.

It is not too much to say that we soon shall have movie grand opera. Imagine what this means to smaller cities!

And one concern is even looking ahead to television days when a combination of radio and television will permit a person to hear and see plays in his own home. Theater owners, however, are not doing any cheering about that.

* * *

Another little theater of the movies has opened—this time the Little

DITA PARLO

Carnegie Playhouse, which terms itself "The Aristocrat of the Cinema." As with virtually all other little theaters, the bill is Russian. This time it is the American premiere of "Ten Days That Shook the World," directed by S. M. Eisenstein, who directed the justly noted "Potemkin."

Work is speeding on Gloria Swanson's singing-talking film, according to word from Hollywood, and the first part of the new year should see it in New York. It is called "Queen Kelly." Eric Von Stroheim is the director. Walter Byron is leading man, and Seena Owen also is in it. The locale is Germany and German East Africa. But it is reliably reported that the talking and the singing will be in English—probably with an accent.

Which reminds me that the newer talkies are likely to be in three languages. That doesn't mean the actors have to speak those languages. One of the big movie jobs of the future will be ghost linguist.

* * *

Will Rogers probably will be offered the leading role in a talking version of "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthurs's Court," which made a fortune as a straight movie about eight years ago.

One of the cheapest made pictures of the year is making almost the most money. "The Road to Ruin," a story of juvenile delinquency, cost only $15,000 to film. Willis Kent, producer, sold states' rights for a total of $100,000. Total income for the various folk who bought states' right will reach at least $1,500,000. The man who paid $5,000 for the Michigan rights netted $100,000 in surburban Detroit alone. States' right for New Jersey cost $5,000. In one city, Camden, the picture made $30,000. Kent is kicking himself.

The building on S. Detroit St., occupied by the Humston livery stable and owned by the heirs of the Barrett estate has been purchased by Charles Kelso, of the Central Electric Supply Co., owned by himself and Arthur Garfield. It will be converted into a garage.

The building committee of the First Reformed Church has accepted plans and specifications for the new church and parsonage, which were prepared by Albert Pretzinger, Dayton architect.

A wounded carrier pigeon, which fluttered down in front of the home of Henry Slagle, N. West St., Thanksgiving Day, carried on its leg a metal band on which was engraved "1907-12 R. M."

Prof. G. J. Graham is attending the Central Ohio Superintendent's Round Table which is being held in the Phillips House at Dayton.

WILL SELL SCHOOL

Bloomington school, abandoned now for school purposes, will be sold at public auction by the Jefferson Twp., board of education Saturday, December 8. The school is a two-room brick structure, with a basement and steam heating plant. Consolidation of schools in that district made the abandonment of the small school possible.

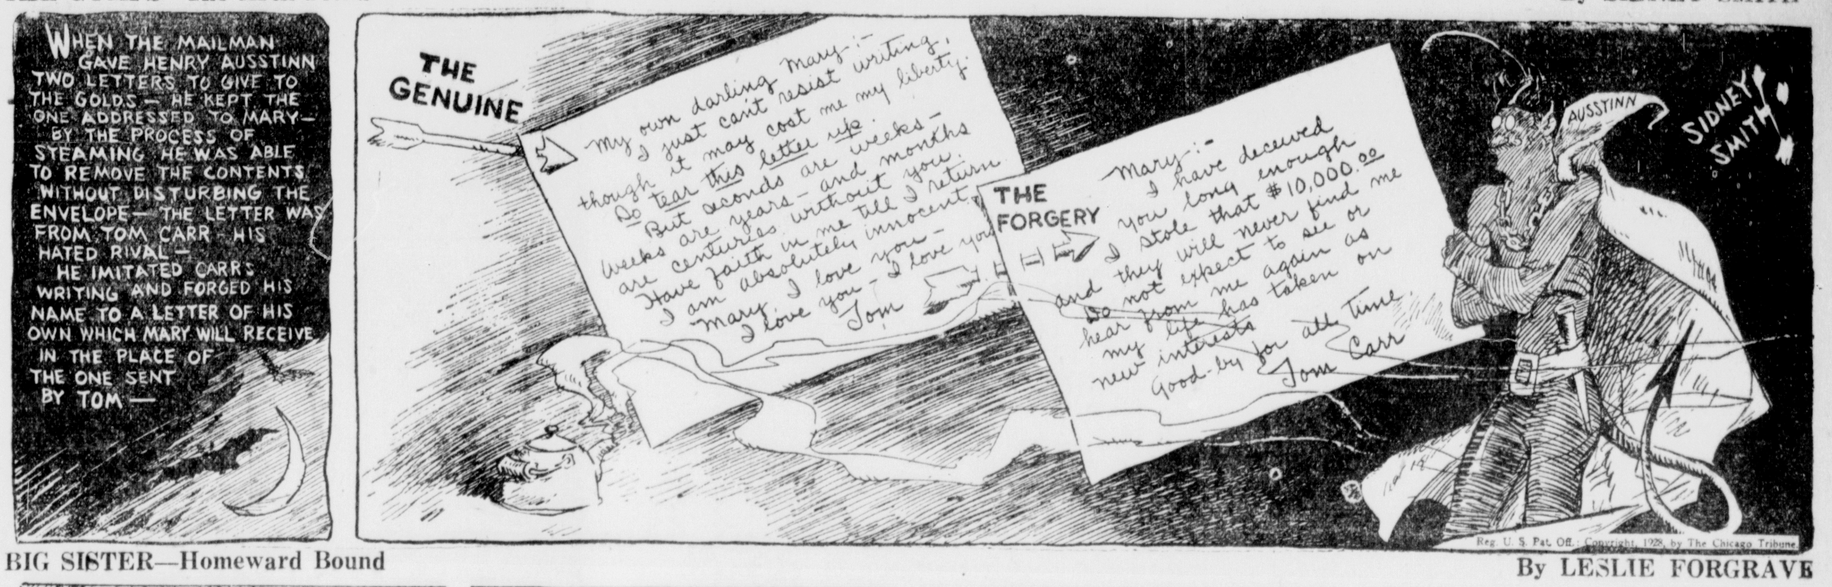

Borrow money from a pessimist—they don't expect to get it back.

DAY OF BIG DINNER HAS PASSED

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 28.—Prohibition has diminished the Great American Appetite, and Thanksgiving dinners are not what they used to be, according to Henry Gartner, professional cook of this city.

And Gartner ought to know. He's been in the business for nearly half a century.

Murphy was telling a group how they went about the work of preparing for the Thanksgiving dinner in the old days.

"Folks faced their Thanksgiving feast with zest," he said, "when sparkling Sauterne graced the table. Sherry or port used to lend a perfect finish to the meal."

Gartner drew a sharp contrast between the past and the present in the matter of preparing for Thanksgiving dinner.

"In those days," he said, "days were consumed in preparing the feast, while today all that a cook needs is a can opener.

"Eggs, milk and brandy are unknown in sauce. Flour, water and a little coloring is the modern way."

Gartner was once called to Washington to prepare a meal for President Grover Cleveland. "As a matter of fact," he said, "the occasion was President Cleveland's wedding."

Gartner also cooked on one occasion for President McKinley.

Life Threatened

John Hertz, above, of Chicago, Ill., president of a taxicab manufacturing company, has told police that his life has been threatened and that he has been warned that his grandchild would be kidnaped. Recently two garages of Hertz' company were bombed and his private racing stables were burned, destroying 11 thoroughbred horses at a loss of $200,000. A taxi war is believed responsible for the trouble.

DEFEAT SPRINGFIELD. THURSDAY

From All Over The World Come Reports of The Reliability of The NEW FORD

The new Ford was not designed primarily for sales and profits. It goes beyond men and materials. It is the expression of an ideal—an ideal that looks toward bringing the benefits of modern, economical transportation to all the people.

Back of the new Ford are manufacturing and production methods as unusual as the car itself. Without these, it would be impossible to give you the value that is in thenew Ford. Because of them, it is unquestionably the best motor car that can be made at a low price without sacrificing quality anywhere along the line.
